Since the beginning of the Brock DNA project some participants have proved the sharing of a common ancestor between descendants of Jesse Brock and descendants of Elder George Brock. Using the DNA and the genealogies involved, it is now possible to narrow our research in looking for Jesse Brocks ancestry to a specific group of Brocks. This researcher offers the following theory by combining genetic genealogy with documented records, along with a minimal of oral history. Also used to assist in this compilation were early Virginia maps and county formation maps to pinpoint areas these Brocks lived per documented records. There is much more research to do and this by no means should be taken as fact. As stated previously, this is a theory.

Per the interview of Elijah Brock (1862-1939), great grandson of Jesse Brock, by Annie Walker Burns<sup>1</sup>, "Jesse Brock was the first white settler on Wallins Creek Kentucky. He was about a three-quarter Indian, and had so much Indian blood in him, that he had no trouble in living among the Indians who were thickly settled in the mountains when he first came, raised his family among them, hunted along with them, with no trouble whatever." For several years Jesse's father has been said to be Aaron Brock. There has been no primary document to support this claim. Elijah did not name Jesse's father. The earliest mention claiming Aaron Brock was during the 1960's. A book titled "Strong Family of Kentucky", by Mrs. J.C. Hurst, circa 1958, states "Mahalah was a daughter of Aaron Brock and a sister of Jesse Brock". In June of 1968 a Loren Davidson posted a query in The East Kentuckian stating "Jesse and sister Mahala were children of Aaron Brock (ca 1721-1820)". Neither gives supporting evidence of their claims and it appears the naming of Aaron Brock as Jesse's father has been perpetuated because of them. Some pre-internet Brock researchers say the attachment of Red Bird to Aaron was first rumored in the 1970's. The story escalated around 1980 and took on a new phase of naming a Reuben Brock, a colonial soldier, as the father of Aaron Brock. Still, no evidence was given to support this claim and sources to its beginnings are long forgotten.

A descendant of Jesse Brock has a 67/67 Y-DNA match with a descendant of Elder George Brock. A match of this proportion proves the sharing of a common ancestor 98.96% within 8 generations and 99.89% within 12 generations. Much is known about the Elder George Brocks line. Per family history and from researchers who have documented this line and not relied on hearsay, Elder George Brock was the son of Banner Brock who died during the War of 1812. Banner's parents were Allen Brock and Lydia Reece. Allen's father is claimed to be Capt. John Brock, born 1728 VA, who is believed to be the son of Joshua born 1703 St. Peter's Parish, New Kent Co., VA. There are others however who claim Allen was the son of a George Brock. Allen's parentage will be discussed in more detail later, but for now we will go on the premise that Allen was the son of Captain John Brock.

If the statements made by Elijah Brock are accurate in that Jesse had Indian blood in him and then factoring in the Y-DNA match between the Jesse Brock and George Brock descendants, and knowing the extended genealogy of George, it would appear any Native American ancestry in Jesse came in through his maternal side. At this point I must interject that mtDNA test results for descendants of Mary Polly Brock Osborne, sister of Jesse Brock, has not shown Native American ancestry. In order for Native American ancestry to be proved through Y-DNA and mtDNA test, the direct male and female ancestor must be Native American. With descendants of Mary Polly Brock not showing a Native American haplogroup, any Native American ancestry had to arrive within the line other than through the direct male or female ancestor. I must also include that the descendants of Jesse Brock who have taken a DNA Print (Autosomal DNA), have proved a percentage of Native American ancestry. Although there is no way of knowing where the Native American ancestry arrived, it does appear to give credence to the statement made by Elijah Brock.

Using the 3/4 statement of Elijah, which by all means cannot be taken literally, but at least be a starting point, Jesse's grandfather could have been a white man who married a Native American and raised his children with her people. This would account for the reason we have not been able to find any records pertaining to Jesse's lineage.

With this in mind, then consider the line of Elder George Brock, with whom Jesse's descendants have an exact DNA match. George's father was Banner Brock, the son of Allen Brock born in 1750. Allen was born just one year before Jesse, placing them in the same generation. Aaron, unconfirmed father of Jesse, has been suggested to be born in 1720. Going by the premise stated earlier, Allen Brock's claimed father was Capt. John Brock, born about 1728. This places Capt. John Brock and Jesse's father in the same generation. Joshua Brock, born 1703 New Kent Co. VA, is said to be father of Capt. John, which respectively would be of the same generation as Jesse's grandfather. Joshua's father was George Brock born about 1680. In theory, this would make the 1680 George Brock the shared common ancestor between the Jesse and Elder George Brock descendants.

When this researcher originally began working on the theory stated within this document much dependency was placed on the research of others for the ancestry of Allen Brock. Recent research has uncovered information that suggests the Allen Brock who was the grandfather of Captain John Brock of Laurel County Kentucky was not a descendant of Joshua Brock. From all appearances there were two Allen Brock's of similar age; one being from the line of Joshua Brock, the other from the line of George Brock Junior. Regardless of which, the generational lines stated above would remain the same, only the names would change.

The following takes a closer look at the 1680 George Brock, referred to as George Brock Senior throughout the remainder of this document, and his descendants. In doing this we will also begin to see a correlation between Jesse Brock and George Brock's descendants.

The first record of George Brock Sr. can be found in St. Peter's Parish, New Kent Co., Virginia at the baptism of his son Joshua on 3 July 1703.<sup>2</sup> In 1704 St. Peter's Parish was divided and the upper, or northwest, portion became St. Paul's Parish. George's land was processioned<sup>3</sup> in St. Paul's Parish in 1711 and 1715.<sup>4</sup> On the 11th of July 1719, George Brock (Sr.) was granted land for transporting six men in the amount of 300 acres on the west branch of

Stonehorse Creek, with an adjoining line to John Symes/Sims<sup>5</sup> in St. Paul's Parish, New Kent Co., Virginia.<sup>6</sup> In the following year of 1720 Hanover County was formed from New Kent County. George Brock's land on Stonehorse Creek was in the area of New Kent that became Hanover County. On March 24, 1725, a grant was given to a John Black and having adjoining lines to George Brock and John Symes in Hanover County.<sup>7</sup> In 1728 Goochland County was formed from Henrico Co. and adjoined Hanover Co. on its eastern border. During the 1730's and 1740's two George Brock's (Senior and Junior) were located in Goochland, along with Joshua Brock. In reviewing the records available for George Brock (Sr.) in Goochland we find the following: July 12, 1742, George Brock of St. James Parish<sup>8</sup> of Goochland County, purchased land for 7 pounds from James Owens of St. James Parish of Goochland County, containing 162.5 acres on the east branches of the Wilde Boar Creek, bounded by Charles Christian, and having beginning boundaries within the Hanover County line.<sup>9</sup> In 1741 George Brock witnessed a deed for land on Lickinghole Creek.<sup>10</sup> Wilde Boar Creek, where George Brock purchased land in 1742, runs off of Lickinghole, which runs from the James River in Goochland County and meanders toward the South Anna River in Hanover County. East of Lickinghole is Stone Horse Creek, which runs from the South Anna in Hanover County,<sup>11</sup> where George Brock Sr. was granted land in 1719. On the 3rd of February 1748/9(as written on deed), George Brock, jointly with Thomas Bibey Sr., sold the land on Wilde Boar Creek to Humphrey Parrish Sr.<sup>12</sup> George Brock was listed as living in Albemarle County and signed the deed with his mark in two places. One mark was written as G&B, the other as gB. As noted in the deed of 1748/9, George Brock (Sr.) had migrated to Albemarle County where on August 20, 1748 he received a land grant of 95 acres lying on both sides of Bremono Creek,<sup>13</sup> adjoining the line of John Payne<sup>14</sup> for 10 shillings. Bremono Creek ran from the Fluvanna River, which was near the later boundary line that divided the counties of Albemarle and Cumberland. Just to the east, the Fluvanna and James River meet where the Rivanna River runs off of the James River and divides Albemarle from Goochland. The James and Rivanna River areas were home to the Monacan Indians in the early 1600's; also the Tutelo and Saponi had villages in this area.<sup>15</sup>

The will of a George Brock (Sr.) was written on Sept 11, 1751 and probated on Feb 11, 1752 in Albemarle Co. VA.<sup>16</sup> Only two family members were listed "I give & bequeath my loven Grandson John Brock son of George Brock Junr my plantation of ninety five acres of land four head of cattle". This is the same land granted to George (Sr.) in 1748. Also mentioned in the will was a John Melton "the rest of my estate of what nature of quality so ever I give & bequeath to my loven friend John Melton<sup>17</sup> in consideration of his care of me during my life". George Brock signed with his mark gB. This is the same mark used on the 1748 deed and gives evidence supporting George Brock (Sr.) as being the same George Brock who lived in St. James Parish in Goochland Co. where he purchased land on Wilde Boar and upon selling this land was listed as then living in Albemarle County. The land John Brock was bequeathed is the same land granted to George Brock (Sr.) in 1748 on Bremono Creek.

From George Senior's will, we now know he had a son named George Junior and that George Junior had a son named John Brock. Little is known about John Brock, son of George Junior. On Dec 8, 1761, John Brock and wife Juda, sold the 95 acres he had inherited from his grandfather to a George Brock.<sup>18</sup> A witness for this deed was also a George Brock who signed with his mark (X). I suspect the witness George was George Brock Junior, John's father. It would seem likely the third George Brock (here after referred to as George Brock III) who purchased the land was related as well and possibly a brother to John Brock. The signing of John Brock's wife Juda on the 1761 deed aids in identifying the previous locations of George Brock Junior. John Brock and Judah Walker were married on Feb 2, 1754 in Goochland Co., Virginia.<sup>19</sup> In 1746 and 1748 a George Brock is listed with 3 tithables in Southam Parish of Goochland County.<sup>20 21</sup> The listing of a George Brock on the Southam Parish tithe list distinguishes George Brock Junior from George Brock Senior as it shows George Junior was in Southam Parish, whereas prior evidence has shown George Senior lived in St. James Parish during 1742 and Albemarle County in 1748. An additional accounting of George Senior, not seen by this researching, claims George received a grant in 1744 Albemarle County. If accurate would show George Senior had been in Albemarle at least two years prior to the 1746 Southam Parish tax list. Males 16 and over were tithable, which gives evidence George Junior and two sons were tithed. From this we can calculate George Brock (Jr.) had two sons born 1730 or earlier. From the year of John's marriage we can estimate he was of the right age to be one of the tithables listed with George (Jr.) and was his son, as proven by the will of George Senior. The three tithables in George Brock Junior's household also gives credence to third George Brock being a son as well.

The George Brock in Goochland County, now giving evidence of being George Brock Jr., who was listed in Southam Parish in 1746 and 1748, is of particular interest. Southam Parish was located on the south side of the James River, in the part of Goochland County that was formed into Cumberland County<sup>22</sup> in 1749. Per Cumberland County court orders a George Brock was in Cumberland County 1750-1756; 26 Nov 1750: George Brock in the case of William Gray against George Brock; William Gray against George Brock, case continued on 31 Jan 1750/1; case continued 27 May 1751, to 26 Aug 1751; 30 May 1753 - John Ford, Extor &c of Hezekiah Ford, decd, against Josiah Burton<sup>23</sup>, George Brock & Henry Hatcher<sup>24</sup> for a Debt, Dismis'd; 22 May 1756 - same case, defendants are said not to be in the county.<sup>25</sup>

From the evidence given thus far, George Brock Sr. had at least two sons, Joshua Brock, born 1703 and George Brock Junior, born 1710 earlier. After the birth of Joshua the earliest records located for him to date were found in Goochland County. Per Goochland County Court Orders: May 1732, in the action of trespass on the case between John Wilson plaintiff against Joshua Brock defendant the "sheriff made report that defendant not found and his failing to appear an alias corpus is awarded plaintiff against him"<sup>26</sup>; June 1732, action of trespass on the case between John Wilson against Joshua Brock defendant is dismissed.<sup>27</sup> (Note: George Brock is also listed in the court records during this time frame: April 1733, petition of William Mayo<sup>28</sup> against George Brock deft.<sup>29</sup>) By the statement in the 1732 case of "defendant not found" could indicate Joshua had left the county. If so, Joshua's children would have been young in age and traveled with him. The next record located for Joshua was in 1748 Lunenburg County where he is listed as a tithe from the Mouth of Falling River Upwards in 1748.<sup>30</sup> During the year of 1752 Halifax was formed from Lunenburg and in 1753 Bedford County was formed from Lunenburg. Falling River fell in Bedford County, however, the mouth of Falling River fell on the boundary line of Halifax and Bedford. For reasons not stated Joshua Brock received money from Antrim Parish<sup>31</sup> in Halifax County in 1761.<sup>32</sup> Joshua Brock is said to have had at least two sons, George Brock, born 1726 and John Brock, born 1728. In reviewing the early Lunenburg County Virginia records the names of Joshua Brock, John Brock, George Brock and an Elias Brock appear in records. In the year of 1749, an Elias Brock appears on the Lunenburg tax list taken by William Caldwell from Falling River to Little Roanoke River.

This places Elias in close proximity of Joshua just one year later and could be an indication of relatedness. This Elias Brock was a colonial soldier who was granted 100 acres of land in 1787 for his military service. This land was on Pitman Creek in Lincoln Co. (present day Pulaski Co.) Kentucky. In the year of 1750, a Stapleton deed mentions land with a beginning at George Brock's corner and in 1763 a deed of between William Gentry and Allen Gentry states the land as being on Merrin (Meherrin) River at mouth of John Brock's spring branch. During the year of 1764 Charlotte County was formed from Lunenburg. A George Brock is listed on page 9 of "Index to Abstracts of Charlotte County, Virginia Will Book 2 1791-1805", published 1991 by Bel Wise (information regarding entry is unknown at this time). The George and John Brock in Lunenburg could be the first records currently found for Joshua's reported sons. Additional research needs to be done to assist in determining this more thoroughly.

Joshua's early departure to southern Virginia suggests Jesse Brock was not a direct descendant of his as Joshua and family had migrated prior to Jesse's birth. Per Jesse Brocks pension application in 1833 Harlan County, Jesse stated he was born in Cumberland County in 1751. In considering the information on George Brock Jr., we can now place this George in the right place and time frame to have a possible kinship with Jesse Brock. Based on the theory discussed earlier, this researcher believes this George Brock to be a strong candidate for the grandfather of Jesse Brock.

Only a minimal amount of records have been obtained for the Brocks who remained in the area of Albemarle and Fluvanna counties in northern Virginia. Three years after George Brock III purchased the land on Brems Creek he was involved in a court case on 9 Aug 1764, George Brock of St. Anne's Parish Albemarle Co., to Saml Jordan<sup>33</sup>, Factor for Archd. Ingram, George Kippen, & Co. Merchts. in Glasgow, Mortgage plus interest for the land on Brems Creek.<sup>34</sup> In another court case in 1773 involving George Brock in conjunction with the suit brought against him by Samuel Jordan, it was ordered that George Brock was to be arrested.<sup>35</sup> In July of 1777 Fluvanna County was formed from Albemarle and the land on Brems Creek was in the section of Albemarle that became Fluvanna. On March 24th 1779 George Brock III sold this land to Fisher Rice Bennett.<sup>36</sup> A witness to this deed was John Melton. It is very possible this was either the same John Melton mentioned in the will of George Brock Senior, or his son who was also named John.

Shortly after the July 1777 formation of Fluvanna County a group of residents signed a petition asking that the county be dissolved. This petition was followed by another asking that the newly formed county not be dissolved. There were several inhabitants of Fluvanna who signed the petition that are of special interest: Mecajah (Micajah) Brock, Allen Brock, George Breck (Brock), John Melton,<sup>37</sup> Pearce Melton and Richard Bennett, all of which signed the petition with their signature. Micajah Brock has long been said to be the son of a George Brock. The proving of Micajah Brock living in the same county as George Brock gives evidence to support that claim. However, the George Brock who is claimed to be Micajah's father is also claimed to be the son of Joshua, brother of George Junior. This is not supported by the 1777 petition placing Micajah in Fluvanna County which would instead indicate he was of the line of George Junior. The evidence placing Micajah Brock and Allen Brock together gives the same indication for Allen as well. There are two more records pertaining to the Allen Brock that was in Fluvanna County. On December 2nd 1778 Allen Brock purchased 100.5 acres, with an adjoining line to Humphrey's, from Randolph & Martha Watson.<sup>38</sup> On September 2, 1779, Allen Brock (of Fluvanna County) sold this land to Michael Perkins of Louisa County.<sup>39</sup>

The Allen Brock of Fluvanna County is of great importance as it gives evidence he was not the son of John Brock, son of Joshua, as reported by some. John Brock and family can be located as early as 1773 in Pittsylvania County when John Brock and Elisha Estes witnessed a deed for David Kirby.<sup>40</sup> The following year John and his son John Brock Junior are listed on the Henry County tax list.<sup>41</sup> Henry County was formed from Pittsylvania County in 1777 and records indicate John and his family lived in the area that became Henry County. John and Sherwood (Sherod) Brock signed an oath of allegiance in Henry County about 1777/1778.<sup>42</sup> John Brock Junior wrote his will in 1784 Henry County naming his father John and brother Sherod; his will was witnessed by an Allen Brock.<sup>43</sup> This was the second incidence of an Allen Brock in association with Henry County. The first came in the winter of 1776/1777 when an Allen and Jesse Brock were listed on the service rolls of a militia unit commanded by Captain Jonathan Hanby located at Fort Liberty. Jonathan Hanby was nominated militia officer in Pittsylvania County in 1775. After the formation of Henry County his company was affiliated with that county. An Allen Brock signing the will of John Brock Junior suggests a relationship.

To determine which Allen Brock was the grandfather of Elder George Brock we must examine the records pertaining to Captain John Brock, uncle of Elder George Brock and brother of Banner Brock, whose birth information is known with surety. At the time of Captain John Brock's second marriage in 1852 Laurel Co. KY to Mary Brummett, John Brock listed his age as 76 and as being born in Louisa Co. VA. At the taking of the 1850 Laurel Co. KY census, John Brock gives his age as 72. This places John as being born between 1776 and 1778 in Louisa Co. VA. The Allen Brock showing evidence of living in Henry County as a soldier in Hanby's Henry County militia in 1776/1777 was far removed from Louisa County. Because of his location it is unlikely that he could have been the father of Captain John Brock. We must then look at the other Allen Brock that was located in Fluvanna Co. VA from at least 1777 to 1779.

As shown previously, an Allen Brock signed the petition in the newly formed county of Fluvanna in 1777. In 1778 Allen Brock, noted as living in Fluvanna County, purchased land from Randolph Watson that had an adjoining line to a Humphrey. This deed stated Allen was already in possession of the land. In 1779 Allen Brock, still listed as living in Fluvanna County, sold this land to a Michael Perkins. No waterways or roads were listed in these deeds to help determine its location more fully. The only information to aid in determining this more closely is with the clues of the names of Randolph Watson and Humphrey. In a search for deeds regarding Randolph Watson and a Humphrey together, one deed for a David Humphrey in association with Randolph Watson was found. The land this deed concerned was for a David Humphrey<sup>44</sup> and noted an adjoining line to Randolph Watson, Henry Taylor, William Lovell and others. This land was located on Byrd Creek with portions lying in both Albemarle (later Fluvanna) and Louisa counties. Searching further for evidence of the land Randolph Watson sold to Allen Brock, three other deeds were found for Randolph Watson. Of special interest is a 1774 deed for 400 acres of land that Randolph Watson purchased that was also located in both Louisa and Albemarle counties and lying south of Three Notched Road.<sup>45</sup> The two other deeds for Randolph Watson gives the appearance Watson was selling tracts of the 400 acres he purchased in 1774: 1779 Randolph Watson to John Saunders, 100 acres in the counties of Fluvanna and Louisa on the branches of the creek bounded by Charles Clarke, John May, Henry Taylor and Trimmurs<sup>46</sup>; 1779 Randolph Watson to Charles Clarke, of 121.25 acres of land in the counties of Fluvanna and Louisa on the waters of the Byrd Creek and bounded by Trimer, Merodith, May and the county line.<sup>47</sup> In reviewing other deeds from the Louisa Co. Survey Book<sup>48</sup> one deed for a Stephen Hunter places Byrd Creek near Three Notched Road, (168a on the waters of the Byrd and Rocky Creek & both sides the Three Notched Road.....in Louisa/Fluvanna Co Line). The areas of Byrd Creek and Three Notched Road<sup>49</sup> listed in these deeds were originally in Louisa and Albemarle County. After the formation of Fluvanna in 1777 this area was then placed into Louisa and Fluvanna counties ("North of this section of the Three Notched Road (Route No. 653) the county line follows a straight line, but the road passes over into Louisa County until it swings back across the line into Fluvanna"<sup>50</sup> These deeds give every indication that the land Allen bought and sold in Fluvanna County was located near the Fluvanna/Louisa county border; which places this Allen Brock to be in the right place in time to be the father of Captain John Brock, uncle of Elder George Brock and a brother to Banner Brock. This evidence also presents a very strong case that Allen Brock was the grandson of George Brock Junior and the son of George Brock III, or possibly even his brother John Brock.

As stated earlier, evidence has proven George Junior had a son John, who married Judah Walker, and from all appearances a son George (III), both born prior to 1730. By 1780 most, if not all, of George Brock Junior's family had migrated to the southern portion of Virginia where they intermingled with the family of Joshua Brock. The southern counties George Senior's descendants lived in included Henry, Franklin, Bedford, Lunenburg and Pittsylvania in Virginia and the bordering counties of Guilford and Surry in North Carolina. With the usage of common first names it is difficult to discern between the families of George Junior and Joshua. Researchers who have delved into these lines previously have made a separation between the two. These researchers claim Joshua had two sons, one named George and the other named John Brock, referred to as Capt. John Brock by many. Joshua's son John is claimed to have had children: Joshua, born 1746, married Lucy Kirby; Sherod, born 1748, died 1815 Campbell Co. TN; John, born about 1750, died 1784 Franklin Co. VA and Allen, born 1750. Some of John's children can be found in records together which aids in identifying them. These records include those of Surry Co. NC showing John (most likely the father), Sherod and Allen there as early as 1773 and as late as the 1790's. The lone exception is with John's son John, who died in 1784 Henry County and left his will naming his father John, brother Sherod (as executor) and was witnessed by Allen Brock. I must reiterate that the Allen claimed to be the son of John is also said to be the father of Captain John Brock born 1776-1778 discussed previously. As John's son Allen was listed as early as 1773 in Surry Co. NC it seems doubtful that he could have been the father of Captain John Brock (b. 1776-1778 Louisa Co. VA); leaving the most likely candidate, as evidenced previously, the Allen Brock who remained in northern Virginia.

As for the George Brock who is reported to be Joshua's son, he is said to have had children: Elijah (surety for the marriage of Moses Brock to Susannah Dyer); Moses, born 1755; Micajah, born 1760; Benjamin, born 1762; Jeremiah, born 1765 and George, born 1777 and daughters, Catherine, born 1744, married Charles Burnett and Susanna, born 1772, married Moses Lesseur 1792 Franklin. With the new evidence placing Micajah in Fluvanna County, this indicates he was most likely a descendant of George Junior and not Joshua. The same is also true for Catherine who married Charles Burnett, reportedly in 1765 Albemarle County.<sup>51</sup> By Micajah and Catherine showing evidence they were the grandchildren of George Junior and not Joshua, it is possible that others who had been attached to Joshua's claimed son George could instead be from the line of George Brock Junior. As in the case of Moses Brock who appears to have had a close relationship with Catherine Brock. Separating the later Brock branches more definitively will be a long and arduous task. For now we must take satisfaction in just knowing they are the descendants of George Brock Senior.

In the following chronology of events, we can see how the path of Jesse Brock crosses paths with the descendants of George Brock Senior.

<sup>17</sup> The name John Melton appears three times in association with the Brocks. The first came in the will of George Brock Senior "the rest of my estate of what nature of quality so ever I give & bequeath to my Loven friend John Melton"; 2nd as a witness of the deed between John Brock and George Brock for the Land John inherited from his grandfather George Brock Senior; 3rd as a resident of Fluvanna, signed the petition in 1777 not to dissolve Fluvanna County. As a side note, a preliminary search over the internet indicates the Terry Melton who lived in Harlan/Clay County was a descendant of the Melton's who lived in Albemarle Co. Va.

<sup>37</sup> This could be the John Melton who was the recipient of part of George Senior's estate and witness the deed between George Brock and Fisher Price Bennett. Another possibility is the son of the John Melton mentioned in George Senior's estate. John Melton of Albemarle Co. is said to have had at least two sons whose names were John and Pearce. Both a John and Pearce Melton signed the 1777 petition.
