The Descendants of Jacob.
(Rev. Peter I.)

(7) JACOB FULLEN WIDER b. Hagerstown, Md., June 2, 1767; d. in Scott's Station, Ky., in 1848. In 1783 he went to Kentucky with his father, and was always a great Indian fighter, and was later in the army of "Mad Anthony Wayne" it being his last campaign against the Indians. He lived for a time at a fort, and later returned to Pa. to claim Anne Leffler as his bride, but this capricious young lady had changed her mind, and gave out that she did not wish to go to such a wild place as Kentucky, preferring the more civilized environment of Rice's Fort.

Young Jacob was feeling rather badly when the benevolent Mr. Christopher Winter, who had observed the state of his feelings, came forward with sympathy, saying to him: "Now you don't care for her as much as you think you do; look at all these other fine girls; why don't you take one of them?" "They might not want to go to Kentucky either," said Jacob, ruefully. Mr. Winter became more and more sympathetic, seeing such a fine young man in such trouble, and at last said, "there's my Katherine; she'll go with you!"

And so they were married almost immediately, on April 18, 1796, but spent several years in Pa. before going, as the first three children were born there; whether this tardiness in keeping her part of the bargain was pleasing to Jacob, history does not inform us, but they finally left Pa. and journeyed toward Ky., part way on horseback and part way by boat on the Ohio river. A story which illustrates her character is told of her presence of mind during this trip; the boat was not very well constructed, and some leaks came, and it was seemingly filling with water; every one made an effort to leave when she called for knives and tow, and began calking the cracks, and her bravery so inspired the others that they soon had the boat quite tight, and by watching and working with it managed to keep it afloat until they reached their destination. The captain was very grateful to her for this conduct.

Jacob was for fifty years an elder in the Presbyterian Church¹, and was the principal founder of Shiloh and Olivet Churches; he was a man of much vigor, even in old age, and made a trip to Indiana on horseback when 80 years old, returning the same way.
