She became a practical nurse after Ray Apley died and for years took care of invalid old persons in their homes, most of whom were younger than her. She had to retire about 1985 though because she broke a hip. After that she was supposed to use a cane or walker but mostly refused to because they slowed her down. I don't think she ever flew in a plane on one of her trips back to Michigan from California. She would contract with others to drive their car back to Michigan, and then find someone else to let her drive their car back to California. She also lived in Florida for awhile when she was younger.

The winter of 1945-1946 found them living north of Prudenville, MI, in an old one-room school house belonging to his mother. The next spring they moved to a 4-room house a short distance away where they resided until the fall of 1948. Leo worked in construction during this time. About December 1948 the family moved to Memphis, MI, residing on Bordman Rd. 1/4 mile west of Memphis. The summer of 1951 the family moved to Stoney Lake at Oxford, MI where they resided until November 1958. During this time Leo continued to work in construction. In Nov 1958 Leo and Ida bought a house in downtown Oxford which remains in the family today (2006). Leo rarely talked about his growing-up years, only saying that he lived with various relatives thru the years. He loved to tell stories and had his children convinced that he taught Wild Bill Hickock how to shoot and rode with Kit Carson. Another story had him riding Babe the Blue Ox and helping Paul Bunyan chop down trees.

Leo was a Master Mason and Worshipful Master of Oxford Lodge #84. He also served many times as Worthy Patron of the Oxford Chapter O.E.S. #266. He also belonged to many police organizations.
