This has been secured to my clip board since then

Dear Bernard Jack -

Time has flown and here it is October since I wanted to take advantage of your offer to send copies of "Old West" - that I'd better write 2 copies will be fine - looking forward to seeing them.

Have you repaired all the ravages of the hail storm last spring? Was sorry to hear of this misfortune - weather has played havoc in many areas this year even Arizona has had 2 tornados - when even one has been considered rare.

The retired chart - maker in New York intends one, I would have begged for a copy of his map except I wanted to spend my summer in Indian ruins and felt I might be tempted to go scurrying around looking for his indicated points of reference especially since there is a large ruin on Mount Mt to the SE of the Queen - been called Spanish Ruin - Indian Arch. large fortified ruin laid up of fitted, squared flag stone with doors and narrow windows also surrounding ground outside ^{which slopes} ~~down~~ ^{down} have been laid with large slabs - to eliminate ground cover, I suppose. No water conveniently near to ruin at present time.

Someday I shall have to make a snag of all the ruins I know are definitely around, since U of A survey does not show them all. Then when there is a first fire I can ^{add} some more.

I did want to go to the 'Indian Post Office' - large rock just covered with writing, and copy or photograph some of them.
Do you receive Ariz Herays? Recent copy had article by Coxen and theory about signs. Tried to check his theory on Reavis Creek but no luck so far - but I've brushed 10 lbs of snow off rocks. Museum of Natural History Magazine also had a number of cave pictures from Calif. If you do not have these, would be glad to lend you mine. If you have not read Book of Hopi, I'll send mine to read - in relation to our stories, they (Hopi's) came from West over stepping stones which disappeared. In fact one review stated "just a rehash of mythology, fantasy & theory of "Mu". One thing bothers me - remember I told you of an unusual happening under hypnosis. One of the Hopi symbols for a flying shield is exactly what I saw when - (Oh, must be when I was interrupted - the that is gone!)
