

ley in Brooklyn in the face of tremendous opposition—nine-tenths of the people were bitterly against it. All the prophets said it would never be done, but it was done, and apparently with the greatest ease. It was a great public misfortune; we may all heartily wish it had never been done, but it is impossible not to admire the pluck and generalship that availed so cleverly, even in a very bad cause.

Besides the street car business which he controls—a thing enormous, and growing—this singular man has big manufacturing and other business interests at his fingers' ends—car factories, steamboat and transportation companies—I don't know what all. Any one of these would be enough to absorb all the energies of any man of ordinarily large capacity. Yet I understand that he gives each not only his thorough personal attention, but he is the life of each. A man of extraordinary power of mental concentration—a big, solid, protruding jaw, looking as if his teeth were tightly clenched most of the time, and giving you constantly the impression of a man elbowing his way through a crowd and looking at something far beyond it. He is a very young man, everything considered, about forty, I suppose. It is only seven years since he emerged from obscurity and became president of the Brooklyn City Railroad Company.

Queries.

To the reader:—If you are interested in this work, send in your queries for this column and help answer those of others. Don't hesitate to send answers however meager they may be. Your mite may furnish the clew which has long been sought for in vain. For convenience of reference these queries will be numbered. Always give number in replying.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page; etc. Instead of repeating the name of a place in the same paragraph initials only are frequently given.

Hints for Contributors.

In writing matter for the printer use only one side of the sheet, note paper preferred. In giving dates, give year, month and day whenever known. Write all middle names in full. Answer the following questions as fully as possible and give names and addresses of such people as you think may be able to complete the record but get it yourself if possible and spare the editor. Old newspaper files, tombstones, family Bibles and records, official records of the town, school and church, burial certificates, county and probate records, old deeds and letters are some of the more important sources of information. Don't forget however the stores of information which the old people can give—Get them interested and then "pump them dry." Most important of all, don't get discouraged yourself. How can you interest others, if you yourself are not alive with enthusiasm?

Family Record Questions.

1. Name in full; initials are often a source of confusion.
2. When and where born?
3. When and where married and by whom?
4. To whom married? Always give name in full and in case of the wife give her maiden name.
5. Give date of birth of your "better half or halves."
6. Give cause, place and date of death.
7. Names of parents-in-law, being sure to give maiden name of your mother-in-law.
8. Place or places of residence.
9. What is your occupation?
10. When and where educated?
11. What public office have you held?
12. What service in army or navy?
13. What traditions in your family?
14. Give any interesting events in family history.
15. Names of your children with places and dates of birth.
16. If they are married answer questions 8 to 15 inclusive for them.
17. Dates of death for ch. dying unm.
18. Names of your brothers and sisters with dates of birth and as much more of their family history as you can give or obtain from them the complete record.
19. Names of your parents. Be sure to give your mother's maiden name with names of her parents.
20. Dates of birth, marriage and death.
21. Names of your father's parents.
22. Dates of birth, marriage and death.
23. Names of children with dates of birth.
24. Any further history of these uncles and aunts that you can obtain.
25. Anything you can learn of your earlier ancestry. Much of this will probably be fragmentary. It is one object of the LEWISIANA to make this complete for you but you must do your part.

James H. and Kate A. (Lewis) Chapin had 1 ch.
455.I. Harriet Lewis b. and d. June 21, 1882.
REV. JAMES HENRY CHAPIN, PH. D., a descendant in the 8th generation of Samuel Chapin, from Wales to Dorchester, Mass., about 1635, and at Springfield, Mass., in 1642. He worked on his father's farm and assisted in shoemaking, attending country school generally three to six months in the year. At the age of 17 he taught a country school; 1852 entered Lombard University, Galesburg, Ills.; became principal of academic department while a student, in the meantime read theology; was graduated 1857; 1857-1858 associated with Rev. L. B. Mason in publication of the New Covenant, a religious work, at Chicago; June, 1859, installed as pastor of Universalist church at Pekin, Ills., 1862, called to Springfield, Ills. One of the chaplains of the legislature of Illinois in the stormy session of 1862-63. Health failing, he abandoned the pulpit, and in 1864 crossed the plains with a company of prospectors to the Pacific Coast, being four months making the journey. In San Francisco, took up work begun by the celebrated Rev. T. Starr King and Rev. H. W. Bellows, to organize the people to aid the U. S. Sanitary Commission in its work among soldiers on the battlefield, and in the hospitals. He canvassed the Pacific Coast from Mexico to British Columbia, and from Carson River to the Golden Gate, during 1864-5, holding enthusiastic meetings, in which large contributions were made in aid of the Commission. He became popular in the mining districts, and was the recipient of many testimonials of esteem from the miners. Autumn of 1865, returned from California, and was appointed Secretary of the New England Freedmen's Aid Society; afterwards part of the Freedmen's Union Commission, for establishment of schools in the Southern States. Held this position three years, with headquarters in Boston, Mass., organizing auxiliary associations in New England, and made tours of inspection of schools in all seaboard States from Baltimore to New Orleans. Was chosen to conduct the work of the Centenary of the Universalist Church in America, 1870, in Massachusetts.

The following from Mass. State Archives relates to George (24) v. p. 78, Vol. III:

PLYMOUTH COLONY RECORDS.

Barnstable:

At a meeting of the Governor, Mr. Laythrop and Mr. Thatcher Assistants, the 25th of Feb., 1683:

In reference to the settlement of the Estate of George Lewis Jr. deceased; between the Mother, and her three children, he had by her; and therein respect being had to what he verbally declared to be his Mind and Will:

It is ordered that his two Sons George and Samuel to have his house and land equally divided between them, when they shall come of age;

And the said Elizabeth to have the use or profits of it while she remains widow, and the profits of it afterwards, as the overseers George Lewis and Jabez Lambert with the approbation of the Court shall order it; and that his daughter Hannah to be placed out to a good service, until she shall attain the age of 18 years; and the cow given her by her father, to be so disposed as she may have it at the same age delivered to her; and that George Lewis the Grandfather, take the child called George aforesaid to keep and bring it up, as it may learn a Trade; and is to take one of the cows with the said child, in consideration of bringing of it up;

And the Mother the said Elizabeth to take the least child Samuel to bring up, until it is fit to be put to some good Trade, and debts being first paid by the said overseers, intended to be executors by the said George deceased, as seems to appear to us, and then the said Elizabeth to have all the rest of the estate for her support and bringing up the said child as aforesaid, excepting his gun to his eldest Son, and his sword and belt to his youngest Son, and an iron pot to his Daughter Hannah; unto which the Parties concerned did agree and desire it may be recorded.

CHAPTER XXIX.

REV. JOHN JAY LEWIS.

Mr. Lewis resigned last July to enter the lecture field. His principal lectures, all illustrated by fine stereoscopic views, are, The Story of the Passion Play of Oberammergau, as witnessed by Rev. J. J. Lewis, Aug. 10, 1890, and Through the Canadian Rockies, the Wonderland of America. He gives numerous courses upon his travels through Europe. Amongst them is one of six entitled "In the Paths of the Pilgrims and Puritans." While travelling through England and on the Continent collecting material for this course of Lectures, he visited East Greenwich and St. Andrews Church where the ancestors of George (1) Lewis attended church, the same where Henry VIII had his baby daughter, Elizabeth, christened.

From the heath above the town a most charming view of the valley of the Thames and of grand old London can be obtained.

In describing this scene Mr. Lewis has said, "When I gazed away over the quaint and lovely city of Greenwich to the domes and towers of London with that fair and peaceful Thames valley lying between, I found myself exclaiming, 'What a mighty force must have been at work in George Lewis' heart to drive him from these attractive and homelike surroundings across the wild ocean to a still wilder country.'"

Signed by Mr. Thomas Hinckley, Governor.

CHAPTER IV.

By S. C. LEWIS, FRANKLIN, PA.

My Grandfather Chittenden (3) got his name from his uncle, who was the first Governor of Vermont, Governor Chittenden. In his latter days he used to talk a great deal about the old family traditions and history, as they came to him from his mother, though even at that time there was not so much thought given to these matters as now, and personally I had not the interest in them that I have had since. He used to tell me, however as a child, about there being an old trunk in the garret of the house that the children used to play with, in which were a sword, a cocked hat, and a parchment paper with a lot of big seals on it, which his mother told him was his grandfather's commission in the Revolutionary Army as a captain. There were also parts of the old uniform, and he remembered a lot of letters; but these things were very unfortunately burned up with the house when he was about ten years old.

My grandfather (Chittenden) came to Cleveland from Malone, New York, with his little family, two teams, and four horses; drove through. He settled in what was then known as Ohio City, but afterwards incorporated into the City of Cleveland. He was Indian Agent there, and in connection with that had a store and purchased staves for shipment to the West Indies. The staves used to be taken by vessel from Cleveland down the Niagara River, then other boats took them to Oswego, thence were transferred by land to Troy, and so down the Hudson. In that early day he used to tell me about frequently going backwards and forwards to New York, horseback, as he used to buy goods for his store there, and they came back by the same route the staves were shipped. He was a very successful merchant, and for the times was a rich man; a man of large business capacity. In addition, he was County Treasurer, and served a number of terms as Alderman, and was the most thorough going, earnest old Jacksonian democrat ever heard of, and a sincere Christian as well. He left a memory behind him that his descendants feel very proud of. He met with reverses in the latter part of his life, and for the last fifteen years of his life was a confirmed invalid from asthmatic trouble, which made it impossible for him to exercise.

I am, and have been, very anxious to trace back from Nehemiah more definitely. I gave a great deal of thought to it a few years ago, and wrote and visited a great many places to find out the point he went from in Rhode Island, or Connecticut, to Vermont, and the time, but I have never succeeded. I am sure that the missing link will connect him with John Lewis, who came up from the Barbadoes to Smithfield, Rhode Island, through John's son Richard. My grandfather used to entertain me as a child by telling me stories, which came from his mother, about the Lewis family having come up from the Barbadoes into Rhode Island at an early date, and about their having slaves and bringing them with them; all of which is rather hazy in my mind now, and I have no possible way of refreshing it.

Fielding, Jr., (13) son of Fielding (6) and Bettie (Washington) Lewis had five dau. no son as given on p. 92 Vol. IV. One of these dau.

151. Catherine m. Henry Chew Dade of Va. whose dau. Lucinda Frances m. Judge H. W. Foote of Miss. Of the ch a dau. Emmie m. H. M. Patty, a lawyer of Atlanta, Ga.

Howell (38) son of Charles (9) of the Bird and Mary (Howell) Lewis m. Mary dau. of Col. Henry and Mildred (Washington) Willis of Fredericksburg. Mildred was a gr. dau. of Lawrence Washington, and first cousin of General Washington. This member of the Lewis family bought estates in Granville-co., N. C. He removed thither where he spent the remainder of his days dying at the advanced age of 83 years, his will being probated in 1814. Howell (38) and Mary (Willis) Lewis had a dau.

152. Mildred m. John Cobbs of Va. later of Ga. From oversight, caprice or fancy the children of John and Mildred (Lewis) Cobbs dropped the "s" and hence the distinguished "Cobb" family of Ga. Howell Cobb was Gov. of Ga., Speaker of the House in Congress and Secretary of the Treasury during Buchanan's administration. Col. John T. Glynn a distinguished lawyer of this city and Mrs. Hoke Smith, the wife of the present Secretary of the Interior are of this family.

My information is from the records of the old Counties of Va. I have ransacked Church Registers and graveyards, deciphering inscriptions on tombstones for more than 200 years of family burials. I have certified copies of Wills of the generations from Nicholas Meriwether b. 1647 down to Capt. Robert Cobbs my gr. father, the only son of Mary Lewis (33 p 137) who d. 1829. It is not my intention to indulge in harsh criticism on the worse than fiction which enters, to so great an extent, into our genealogies but it is my ardent desire to reach as nearly as possible "the truth of history" and I will take pleasure in contributing thereto, whenever an opportunity offers.

[Readers of LEWISIANA hope Mr. McAllister will continue his interesting and valuable contributions to the records of this Book. ED.]

CHAPTER XVI.

CAPT. MERIWETHER LEWIS.

Verne S. Pease writes entertainingly in The Southern Magazine for Feb., 1894 on the Death of Captain Meriwether Lewis. He writes:

"That a young man of thirty-five, of superior intelligence, the governor of the vast territory west of the Mississippi river, possessed of great wealth, already conspicuous in the eyes of the country for duties well performed, and on his way to Washington where he knew were awaiting him fresh laurels and new honors, that he should suicide in this wild country is more than preposterous. He was too conscientious. To him every act of life was fraught with grave responsibility and certain accountability. The thought of burial in so wild and boundless a forest, far from the home of his childhood and the graves of his ancestors, would have deterred him from the act had other conditions rendered its commission possible. The unspeakable gloom in which it would have plunged his aged and expectant mother would have stayed his hand, had he, for other reasons, which did not exist, thought to commit the cowardly crime. His whole life, his splendid character are a sufficient reputation of the outrageous charge. But truth, the sometimes tardy though certain vindicator, renders all speculations and deductions unnecessary.

Captain Meriwether (Does Mr. V. S. Pease spell the name correctly? ED.) Lewis was murdered and robbed by Joshua Grinder on the 11th day of October, 1809, in what is now the county of Lewis, Tennessee."

[Readers of LEWISIANA will find in "The New Lewis and Clark," a review of which appears on p 105 Vol. IV, a scholarly article on this subject where all the evidence is carefully weighed and sifted. The same conclusion is reached as above. ED.]

Correction.

In line 12 of Chapter XIII on p 137 it was John (5) son of John (2) who m. 1666 in England, Elizabeth Warner. In spite of the statements of the published histories there were three John Lewises of Warner Hall.

"Our town of Staunton goes finely on, thanks to John Lewis' enterprise and energy. It shall descend to his posterity that he has builded the first town in the valley. It is about four miles from our place of Beverly Manor here, which some call Lewis' Fort. * * * Then I set me to thinking—the child (Alice) is fourteen years old in May, (1737?) and that's just two years younger than I was when I became a married woman. The reflection gave me pain, but I will think of it more. There is nothing gained by shunning the fixed truth, whatever it be. * * * Still they (the Indians) do us the justice to acknowledge the red man was the aggressor. The Great Spirit, they say, is on the side of the white man, and indeed our mode of warfare hath been destructive enough.

My husband has imported the pink clover into the country, but they will have it it is their wild white clover, which Lewis and his men have dyed red with the blood of the Indian.

My poor Alice looks infant-like and innocent with her bald head. A threatening fever followed the excitement and terror of her stealing away by the savages, and her roses in her cheeks are scarce recovered yet."

Readers of LEWISIANA who have been interested in the Extracts from the Journals of Mrs. Lewis (v. pp. 98, 114, 130) will be glad to know that this is the line of her late husband, Rev. Samuel Savage Lewis, F. S. A., Fellow and Librarian of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, Eng.

1. "William Lewis, the father of George was a farmer at Coed, about five miles from Carmarthen. His wife's Christian name was Rachel. Their grandson William remembers that he saw his grandfather at the age of eighty walking with youthful vigor, and noticed that "his hair was as black as a raven." In his case at least, fourscore years had not brought their accustomed labor and sorrow. He and his wife were both members of the Church of England, but allowed their son to follow his own convictions and become a Nonconformist."

EXPLANATION:—The Roman numerals at the left denote the generations. Stars are placed after the names of the youngest member of each family. All on the same line are of the same generation, and hence are cousins with the exception of names between the stars which are brothers and sisters. If you preserve your copies, and of course you do, send for an extra copy, cut this page into strips on the division lines and paste the strips together. Then you will have a complete diagram of your family so far as it has been published. All additions and corrections you can furnish will be very thankfully received.

Clippings.

DULUTH, Minn., Feb. 7.—Ray T. Lewis, republican, was elected mayor of Duluth yesterday by a majority of 2,880 in a total vote of about 10,000.

The contract has been let by George M. Pullman, the palace car millionaire of Chicago, for the erection of a Universalist church in Albion, N. Y., his native place, in memory of his father and mother who are buried there. The edifice will be of red sandstone and is to be completed Sept. 1st, 1894. It will be completely furnished throughout and will be a model church and Sunday School. The estimated cost is $70,000. In one end will be placed a memorial window, costing $5,000. The audience room will receive its light from a dome in the centre of the building. [v. p. 102, Vol. IV.—Ed.]

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Jan. 19, 1894.—A fire in the button factory of Hedge, Lewis & Co., corner of First and Rivet Streets, to-night, gutted the engine room and destroyed some stock in the finishing room. The loss is covered by an insurance of $5000.

Dr. T. M. Lewis, whose testimony in the Pollard-Breckenridge case produced such a sensation, is an aged physician who has been practicing regularly in the county five miles from Danville, Ky., for many years, and stands well in his neighborhood.

Daniel E. Lewis used to be a clerk in a railroad office: now he is one of the foremost street railroad men in the country. There is apparently no end to his ambition or his progress. He is the head of a vast system of trolley lines traversing every part of Kings county and projected over nearly one-half of Long Island.

One teeming brain thinks up most of these deals and carries them out with unflinching boldness. It introduced the trol-
