GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used: as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

CHAPTER CCLXXX.

FROM NEW HAVEN, CT., REGISTER.

A PEACE GENERAL.

There are two kinds of generals in this country. Those who teach the enemy that it cannot tread upon our preserves in safety, and those who teach our children the elementary lessons in education, by means of which they are fitted to take their places in the world as good citizens and just men. It will not do to forget the latter because at present the former occupy the foreground in the panorama of current events. Yesterday an experienced teacher in the school district of New Haven completed the fortieth successive year in our public schools. During that long and active career, thousands of children, many of whom now have children of their own in the public schools, have come under the influence of his character and personality. From him they have received the first principles of knowledge, the initial insight into the mysteries of fact and fancy, and the first equipment which mustered them into the service of their state as citizens, to whom are given by the constitution the rights and privileges of a political and religious freedom. He has never tired in his labors. They have been ceaseless and successful. Men have come and gone, the battles of knowledge have laid many low, but he has gone steadily on until he has seen the fortieth year closed upon his labors, with more years of usefulness ahead of him. It has not been a career that has brought him a world wide reputation and the thanks of Congress.

 There are no medals hanging from his waist-coat. He lives to-day as he lived twenty-five years ago, before and since, a modest, thoroughly efficient, patient and successful teacher of the young. Not so brilliant a career, after all, some scoffer may say? No, not so brilliant as the career of men whose lines are cast in more conspicuous places, but none the less splendid in its achievements than the best of things done by man. It is a career blessed by the appreciation and respect of thousands, which has to sweeten and strengthen it the highest consciousness that comes to man, the knowledge of a duty well done. Such a one is John G. Lewis, the principal of the Webster school district. We beg to compliment him, and to offer him the assurances of our most respectful consideration upon the occasion of his anniversary. [v John Gardner (438) Lewis p 76 Vol. III.—Ed.]

CHAPTER CXXXII.

FROM TIMLOW'S HISTORY OF SOUTH-
INGTON, CONN.

Record of ch. of Lemuel Lewis (156 v p 52 Vol. VII.)

Mereb (964) m Apr. 8, 1786, Dr. Josiah Root b Dec. 17, 1752, at Southington, d June 6, 1841, (she d Mar. 11, 1841) son of Josiah and Keziah (Smith) Root. Entering the revolutionary army as surgeon's mate, he was promoted to the position of Apothecary General, and for a time was stationed at New York. Returning home he engaged in general practice in Hamden, but was located in Southington in 1805 where he died.

Dr. Root was a man of good abilities and had a disposition that made him very popular. Never lacking in material for a good story, his company was much sought by the young who listened with delight to his conversations. He was never irritated unless some one reflected upon his skill while in the army. Generally there was no bounds to his humor. Although not always up to the style in dress nor measured in speech, his society was generally courted in the town. His easy way of disposing of business did not help him as an economist. But few persons could draw about them more friends. 8 ch b.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

FROM ANDERSON'S HISTORY OF WATERBURY, CT.

Ame (44 v p 44 Vol. I) b. May 24, 1751, dau. of John (11) and Amy (Smith) Lewis. m. Silas Constant who d. Mar. 22, 1825, at Yorktown, N. Y. Pastor of 1st Presbyterian church.

Rev. Silas Constant is said to have been "son of Col. Joseph Constant, an officer of the French Army, who m. in Mar. 1849, Susan Terrell, dau. of Elijah of Salem. Soon after this marriage Col. Constant sailed for France to arrange his affairs. The vessel on which he sailed was never heard from and Mrs. Constant died soon after the birth of Silas in Waterbury, bequeathing him to the care of her sister, who had married a Beebe." Although Silas Constant's name appears frequently on our records and his birth is recorded with the family of Jonathan Beebe, there is no hint of his relationship to the family. Beebe's will—which he did not sign—gives "to Silas Constant $50 when he becomes of age." No Elijah Terrell has been found at Salem nor at Waterbury. It is said "he married in 1770 Amy Lewis his second cousin." Mrs. Jonathan Beebe and John Lewis were second cousins. After his 30th year he became a minister. He probably studied under the direction of Rev.

Jacob Green of Hanover, N. J., and was ordained May 29, 1783. He preached in various places in New Jersey until Nov. 8, 1785, when he removed to Yorktown, and remained pastor of the Presbyterian church for nearly forty years.

CHAPTER CXXXIII.

FROM SWIFT'S BARNSTABLE FAMILIES.

When a lad James (6) Lewes was bound an apprentice to a blacksmith, and in after life, when he had become a distinguished man, he thought it was not derogatory to his character to blow the bellows, or swing the hammer. He was industrious and frugal. When he could not earn a shilling he was content if he earned a penny which he put to a good use. By careful management he accumulated a good estate.

In 1655 his houselot, containing twelve acres, was the lot on the west of Taylor's lane. It remains very nearly in the same condition that it was in 1655. The successive owners have been James Lewes (6), his son George Lewes (43), who bequeathed it to his daughter Mersey Taylor (88), and she to her daughter Alice, wife of the late Captain Isaac Bacon. From him it passed into the hands of Mr. Williams of Boston, in payment of a debt of Isaac Bacon, Jr. Williams sold it to the late David Crocker, Esq,

James (6) in 1678, was the owner of all the land between Taylor's lane and the Hyannis road, excepting the lands of John Davis on the southwest corner.

In 1655 he owned three acres of planting land in the old common field, and three acres of meadow on Sandy Neck. Jan'y 29, 1667-8, three acres of land on the south of his houselot was granted to him by the town. Subsequently he purchased other real estate. At the division of the common lands in 1703, he was entitled to 48 $\frac{1}{2}$  shares, considerably more than an average. He had then distributed a large part of his estate to his children.

In 1655 his house was on the lot adjoining Taylor's Lane. By the purchase of the Hallett lands he became possessed of John Hathaway's house, which stood on a cross road now discontinued, and the ancient Roger Goodspeed house. This house (which he probably occupied in 1686) is now standing, if it be justifiable so to speak of a building that has suffered so many transformations.

Lieut. James Lewes (6), was admitted a freeman of the Colony June 1, 1658. His name often appears as a juror, and surveyor of highways. He was lieutenant of the military company of Barnstable many years, and probably a soldier in Philip's war, for his heirs were proprietors of Gorham town. He was one of the Selectmen in 1679, '81, '89 and '90.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

FROM THE BROOKLYN EAGLE.

THE LEWIS MURAL TABLET.

A memorial which has just been completed and will shortly be erected in the Parish Church of St. George, Flushing, L. I., vividly recalls the stirring times of the birth of American independence. About one year ago an antiquated, moth-eaten manuscript was discovered in the garret of the old Jaggar House, 111 Sanford avenue, Flushing, which is now occupied by Captain F. A. Hinman. By the fortunate discovery of this long lost link in the history of the parish another record of national interest was also secured: for in the musty pages of the book was found the signature of Francis Lewis, who signed the Declaration of American Independence, and also a record of the parish, covering a period of seventy-five years. Lewis was at that time church warden of St. George's parish and a resident of the Town of Flushing, where he had settled after a stormy

 life of adventure.

***

***

As a reward for his services (in the French and Indian War) he received a grant of five thousand acres of land from the British government, and in 1765 he bought a tract of 200 acres, now known as Whitestone in the township of Flushing, where he built a substantial residence. About this time of life he became church warden of St. George's Church, Flushing, which office he held for three years.
 He was also a member of the famous Committee of One Hundred of the State of New York, and in 1775 was sent to the continental congress at Philadelphia.

CHAPTER XXIV.

BY PROF. JAMES LEWIS HOWE, LEN-INGTON, VA.

(concluded from last issue.)

The record as given in the genealogy compiled by James Lewis is

Joseph Lewis, son of George Lewis and Sarah Jenkins. was born at Barnstable 1647. He removed to Swansey with his brothers Thomas and Nathaniel about 1670. He married Mary Jones, June 13, 1671, and was killed by the Indians at a massacre in the town of Swansey at the commencement of King Phillip's War. His body was found and buried June 24, 1675."

It will be noted that the latter part of this statement has just been confirmed from the Plymouth Colony Records (v p 184 Vol. VIII.).

Incidentally this record brings up the question of Thomas and Nathaniel. Of the latter this genealogy says "Nathaniel, son of George, born at Barnstable 1645, removed to Swansey, died Oct. 13, 1683."

If "the evidence is conclusive" that Thomas Lewis of Swansea was a son of Edmund of Lynn, what about "his brothers" Nathaniel and Joseph? Or were they not his brothers? Or were there two Thomases? And where was Thomas the unquestioned son of George from 1670 to 1677? The burden of proof seems to lie wholly with those who dispute the statements of Deane.

CHAPTER XXV.

FROM GREENLEAF GENEALOGY.

On the 24th of June was shed the first English blood in what was afterwards called Philip's War.

On that day nine Englishmen were murdered in Swanzy by the Indians as they were returning from the meetinghouse, it being the day appointed as a day of humiliation and prayer throughout Plymouth County, who being thus unexpectedly involved in trouble sent to the other colonies for assistance. August 5th Stephen Greenleaf and others from Newbury, Mass., with fourteen days provisions marched against the Indians. (Town Records.)"

CHAPTER XXVI.

BY H. F. RYTHER, NEWPORT, VT.

The Will of "Hannah Lewis, widow of Joseph Lewis, late of Wilmington," named her son Benjamin as Executor. His Bond filed with the will says "Benjamin Lewis of Billerica having taken upon him the office of Executor of the last will and testament of his mother, Mrs. Hannah Lewis, late of Wilmington." This proves from Benjamin (1) of Billerica back to Joseph (74 v p 137 Vol. VIII) of Wilmington, Mass., Rec. Vol. 2, p 556, "Parts of Reading and Woburn established as Wilmington, Sept. 25, 1730. This accounts for apparent removals about that time v p 104 Vol. V.

Obadiah Jenkins, Jr., (v p 88 Vol. VII) d. in Malden Feb'y 4, 1762. The Judges Decree of Distribution of the Estate dated Apr. 12, 1768 assigned the property to Joseph Jenkins of Wilmington, and ordered him to pay to the legal Heirs [27 in all, and all children of his 7 brothers and sisters] the sums herein ordered:

To the Children of the said Intestates Brother Joseph, Deceased, viz.: Benjamin, Joseph and Abigail, Each nine Pounds, etc. To the children of the said Intestates Sister Sibilla, Deceased viz. Samuel & Sibilla, Each thirteen Pounds, ten Shillings, etc. Filed with the Probate papers is this explanation: Deacon Saml. Howards mother was Sister of the Deceased by his mother's side i. e. Obadiah's Mother, before she married his Father, married a Lewis & had 2 Children, viz. Joseph & Sibilla, which Sibilla was mother to the said Saml. Howard who claims Joseph was Father to Benj. Lewis, who also claims. Sibilla's Children are the said

Samuel and Sibilla. Joseph's Children are Benj., Joseph and Abigail.

Was this the Joseph of Woburn and Wilmington? His children were Hannah, Mary, Benjamin, Joseph, Abigail and John. The first two died before 1751, and the last before 1764, leaving Benjamin, Joseph and Abigail, just the three named in the above distribution. This proves that Mary Jenkins of Malden had a son Joseph Lewis, and very nearly if not quite that Joseph of Woburn and Wilmington was that son.

CHAPTER XIX.

FROM KANSAS CITY TIMES.

It was in Springfield, Ill., that Thomas Lewis (33 v. p. 27 Vol. IX) first made the acquaintance of Abraham Lincoln, then a struggling young lawyer. The friendship arising between the young merchant and the man destined to rise to the highest office in the gift of the American people was continued in bonds of the closest intimacy until the tragic death of the president. It is the proudest boast of Thomas Lewis that he often championed the cause of Abraham Lincoln when the latter was laying siege to the heart of Mary Todd.

"Mary was a good deal as other young girls have been before her and probably always will be," said Mr. Lewis, while a merry twinkle lighted up his eyes. "She had an ideal, and Lincoln fell farthest short of it of any man in the world, but when she announced one day to my wife and me that she had determined, when she was a little lass, that she would never marry unless she could marry a handsome man, but that it seemed to be her fate to marry the homeliest man in the world we knew then that handsome Mary Todd was to be Lincoln's wife."

When he was in business in Springfield Mr. Lewis bought his stock in eastern cities, traveling by stage to Pittsburg, where he bought glassware. In Baltimore he bought sheetings, in Philadelphia prints, and the finer goods in New York.

As a real estate dealer he has owned in New York, New Jersey, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri, Kansas and Indiana over 10,000 acres of land, and more than 3000 city and town lots, and he boasts that he never sold an acre or a lot at less than cost.

With two partners he at one time owned the Springfield Daily Union Herald. Subsequently he published the Cairo Daily Democrat, the Volksblatt for Cairo and Springfield and a ladies' monthly magazine.

As an administrator, executor or guardian he has settled nearly 100 estates, and says that never a complaint was made regarding his methods.

The ambition of this hale and hearty nonagenarian is yet to realize the dream of his life and become a lawyer. He has practiced law as an office adviser, but owing to an impediment in his speech, which was not cured until he was 35 years of age, he was prevented from undertaking work in the courts.

Lewis RoBards (12) the records at Washington show that he was Captain in the Revolutionary army throughout the war for the American independence. He moved to the County of Kentucky when the limits of Virginia reached to the Mississippi river. His first wife eloped with Andrew Jackson, a lawyer, and for that cause of adultery the Court at Harrodsburg gave to him after regular trial a decree of divorce. He married in Dec. 1793 Hannah Winn daughter of Gen'l James Winn, by whom he had five children and died in Bullitt-co., Ky., April 15, 1814.

George RoBards (13) enlisted when 16 years old in the Revolutionary Army. He fought to its close and received three promotions for meritorious services. He had 14 children, the youngest, Mrs. Catherine Hirman born 1815 nee RoBards, survives, and lives in Fayetteville, Arkansas. The National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution gave her a golden "Souvenir Spoon" as the living daughter of a Revolutionary Officer. Under the Act of Congress of June 7, 1832, he was granted a pension in Oct. 1832, just 51 years after he engaged in the battle of Yorktown.

FIREMEN IN THE NAVY.

BY HENRY HARRISON LEWIS IN N. Y. EVENING POST.

Patriotism which will endure a temperature of 140 degrees of heat is of value to a country. Surely, those who labor cheerily and with a never failing regard for their duty, standing untold discomforts contentedly deep down in the lower regions of a man-of-war, in peace and war, in battle and out, are worthy of high praise, even when we are so lost in admiration of the accuracy of our gunners. Down there between the great roaring furnaces of course nothing happening on deck can be seen, but what is heard makes up for it. The discharge of the heavy guns creates thundering echoes and raises a din almost indescribable. With a hissing of steam, the quick clanging of furnace doors, the rumble of machinery, and the spectacle of half-naked, prespiring figures toiling in the glare of the flames, there is nothing else that more nearly approaches the inferno of Dante. Add to it the uncertainty in time of battle and the possibility of the ship's being torpedoed without giving one a chance to gain the upper deck, and you have circumstances under which none but a brave man can work.

With it all, however, a fireman's life is a hard one. His work is onerous and disagreeable, and no matter how well he sticks to his post in the face of peril, he is seldom praised or given even his just dues.

It would be well for us to think of the men laboring for their country deep down in the grimy stokehole when next we read of the success of this vessel or that crew. But for the firemen's efforts on our battle-ships the other day, Cervera might now be speeding safely homeward in his desperate flight.

Notes.

The only officer of the Ninth United States infantry killed in the attack on Santiago de Cuba was Second Lieut. Lewis H. Lewis. The Ninth United States infantry was stationed until it was ordered to the front, at Sackets Harbor.

Lieutenant Lewis was well known in Syracuse, where he has frequently been a visitor. One of the youngest officers at Madison barracks, Lieut. Lewis was a favorite among the men as well as among his brother officers.

A 'Bibliography of the Metals of the Platinum Group,' by Dr. James Lewis Howe, professor of chemistry at Washington and Lee University, has been published as No. 1,024 in the "Smithsonian Miscellaneous Collections." The purpose of the work is "to enumerate the articles upon the metals of the platinum group found in scientific literature to the close of the year 1896." [v. James Lewis Howe (1856) p. 135 Vol. V—EL.]

Mrs. Alice Lewis, 340 West Seventeenth-st., N. Y. City after only four weeks of married life, attempted to commit suicide by swallowing a quantity of carbolic acid.

Mrs. Lewis was only twenty-one years old May 10, 1898, when she married James Lewis. She will recover.
