BOOK VIII. JOHN LEWIS, Westerly, R. 1. CHAPTER CCXCIII.

The Lewis farmhouse at Blandford, near Springfield, Mass., occupied by a large number of summer boarders, was burned to the ground early Sunday morning. The fire was probably of incendiary origin, and the loss will be at least $6,000, with insurance of $3,000. Nearly all the furniture and the personal effects of those in the house were saved, except the clothing of Miss Anna Lewis, the owner of the property, which was in the attic with her watch and some other things. The large barn and the smaller barn were filled with an unusually good hay crop, which had just been harvested, and this, with some farming tools and machines and a horse, three cows, some poultry and swine were destroyed.

The fire was discovered about 3 principalship in the Webster school. O'clock in the morning by Miss Lewis. The committee that had the affair in and she at once aroused the people. Charge consisted of forty graduates of the fire seemed to have started in the the school one from each class in the barn, and though efforts were at once directed toward saving the stock, the horse and cows were burned. The barn was built a few years ago and was a model structure. It was connected with the house by sheds, and it was at once seen that the house was doomed, and the furniture and effects of the inmates were hurriedly taken out.

Among the guests quartered in the house were Mrs. George S. Lewis, jr., and Dudley Lewis of New Haven, Ct. The old Lewis house, which was not burned, was occupied by several relatives of Miss Lewis. Mrs. Melissa Boyden, Miss Minnie Boyden and three young children, Robert Loomis. Mr. and Mrs. William Loomis and two sons of Robert Loomis of Naugatuck, Conn., Mrs. Sarah Wright of Indiana, her grandson and granddaughter. This was almost given up as lost several times. William Lewis got down an old well and passed up pails of water, others took these and with them kept the roof and clapboards wet down until it was out of danger.

CHAPTER CCXCIV.

From Los Angeles, Cal. Times.

Connecticut is ably represented in the N. E. A. convention by John G. Lewis, (v p 6 Vol. X) the veteran principal of the Webster School in New Haven. Prof. Lewis has taught in the same school since January, 1858, a record that has few equals in point of continuous employment. In May last citizens of New Haven celebrated the fortieth anniversary of his principalship in the Webster school. The committee that had the affair in charge consisted of forty graduates of the school one from each class in the forty years. The testimonial to their old principal was given as a surprise to him, and a pleasant one it was. There were gray-haired men and women present from distant parts of the country, who made the journey to New Haven to show their respect for their venerable preceptor. Lewis is 65 years old, and has been teaching since he was 18. He is well preserved for a man of his age, and looks good for at least a decade or a score more of years in the educational harness. This is his first visit to the Pacific coast. He is accompanied by his wife.

FROM THE REDLANDS FACTS.

John G. Lewis and wife have arrived from Los Angeles for a visit of several weeks in this city, where they will be the guests of Mrs. P. R. Brown, a sister of Mr. Lewis, whom he had not seen for seventeen years. Mr. Lewis has other friends in this city, among whom are at least five who had been pupils of his at one time or another during the forty years. There may be others here, also, who have sat at his footstool in the Webster school at New Haven.

WILLIAM LEWIS, Farmington, Ct. CHAPTER CLXXV.

BY LEWIS H. WEBB, FRANKLIN, VA. Hart (811 v p 23 Vol. X) my gt. gr. father removed from Rocky Hill, Ct., to Orange co., N. C., about 1830, accompanied by two gr. dau. (twins) orphan children of his son Eldad (1330). One of whom now 85 years old is still living in Raleigh, N. C. In this removal made by sailing vessel, the case containing the family Bible and many valuable papers and records was lost. My knowledge of my Lewis ancestors is mainly derived Tryphena (1249) d ae 74, m Zeri from a letter received in 1862 from my gt. unele, John Lewis (1333) of Abbeville, Miss. These twenty closely written pages of different sizes and quality show how short of paper we Southerners (I was a Capt. of a N. C. Lt. Art. Co.) were even at that time, Feb. 5th, 1862. I value these papers beyond price.

I can go back to the father of Hart (811) who was Eldad (170) Lewis of Southington, Ct., an officer of the French and Indian war. Mygt. uncle believed the family to be of Welch descent and mentioned that when he (John 1333) lived in Montreal, Canada, he was invited to a festival dedicated to the name of Lewis-a day which he understood had been kept by the Welch people for many generations. He always regretted that he did not attend.

Of the ch. of Eldad (170 v p 38 Vol. VI) my gt. uncle John (1333) states "uncle William (807 v p 102 Vol. V1) was a very learned man in mathematics, chemistry, astronomy, natural philosophy and all the sciences. never studied for any profession. had 4 sons.

Of these ch Charles (849) was a military man and settled in New Haven where some of his ch yet (1862) Chauncey (845) and Seth (1337) were farmers and removed to Penn.

Jonathan Clark Lewis (935 v p 182 Vol. VI) lived in a long, low house, which stood where Capt. Asa Stillman Lawrence's dwelling now stands, near the Town Hall, and situated on a small knoll that was dug away when Dr. Amos B. Bancroft's house was built in 1839. His father married a Miss Clark: and they came to Boston with four ch viz. Ezekiel (933) William (936) Jonathan Clark (935) and Mary Ann(934). FROM GENEALOGY OF THE LEWIS FAMILY BY WM. TERRELL LEWIS.

Henry Graves (76 v p 88 Vol. IV) was a tailor by trade, and emigrated from Albemarle Co. Va. to Rutherford Co. N. C. with his father, before the Revolutionary war.

When a boy he and his brother were out chopping with an ax. He, wishing to chop awhile, asked his brother for the ax: but his brother refusing grant his request, he determined to stop him from cutting by placing his hand on the log where his brother was chopping. His brother paid no attention to his hand but continued chopping, consequently chopped off the ends of all his fingers on his left hand: hence he was called "Stumpfingered Henry Lewis."

GEORGE LEWIS, Barnstable, Mass. CHAPTER CLII.

By L. W. COGSWELL, New Haven, Ct. A Trip to Yarmouth, Nova Scotia.

In some respects a New Englander ought to feel at home here, for Yarmouth is nothing but a bit of New England gone a little adrift. Yarmouth was founded by sturdy New Englanders, and it came about in this way, to quote a bit of history:

"When Governor Lawrence issued his proclamation from Halifax in 1758, hustling the poor Acadians out of the country he forthwith issued another proclamation inviting settlers to come from the colonies further south to people this region, and three years later, in 1761, a couple of Massachusetts men-Cape Codders- Sealed Landers and Elishama Eldridge. sailed over to Nova Scotia, prospected along the southwestern coast, and finally entering a sheltering harbor. settled. Others followed them a year or two later, coming from the same section, and bringing the name "Yarmouth" with them from the little town of Cape Cod-a goodly company of God-fearing men- Ebenezer Ellis. Moses Perry, Jonathan Crosby, Joshua Burgess and Consider Fuller. A few years later came one Waitstill Lewis. What a trio that was-Sealed Landers, Consider Fuller and Waitstill Lewis. No wonder Yarmouth sprung into a firm and healthy existence. Near-Biblical nomenclature. They were all Pelegs and Seths Judas and Joshuas. What could you expect from a community like that but thrift and uprightness, honesty and singleness of purpose! And there are their descendants to this day, though under a British flag, the very salt of New Englandism, uncontaminated and undefiled. Yarmouth ought to be a good place. And it is,"

[This Waitstill Lewis is undoubtedly the one referred to in Query 73 v p 176 Vol VIII. On Mass. Revolutionary Rolls a Waitstill Lewis whose residence was Cape Sable served as a private in Capt. Caleb Brooks' Co., Col. Dike's Regt. from Dec. 14. 1776 to Mar. 1, 1777. Perhaps the same person. Ed.]

CHAPTER VI.

A NEW JERSEY CLIPPING.

B. Frank Lewis, (25 v p 91 Vol. II) for many years tax assessor of Hopewell township, Mercer County, a director of the Hopewell National Bank, tells a strange story of a large water turtle that inhabits a small stream near his home in Pennington. The turtle which has grown to an enormous size, has been fell and petted by the Lewis family for 10 years. With the first frost in the Fall the turtle disappears from the stream, and repeated searching by the Lewis family has failed to reveal its hiding place.

Moses Perry, Jonathan Crosby. Joshua
Burgess and Consider Fuller. A few years later came one Waitstill Lewis. What a trio that was—Sealed Landers, Consider Fuller and Waitstill Lewis. No wonder Yarmouth sprung into a firm and healthy existence. Nearly all those early settlers were men of makes its way to the house to eat meat out of Mr. Lewis' hand. The coming of the turtle has become a matter of history in the Lewis family, and, in fact, in the neighborhood, for many of Mr. Lewis' neighbors turn out on the first Sunday in June to see the arrival of the turtle.

The turtle makes daily trips from the stream to the house for its midday meal, and Mr. Lewis has frequently demonstrated his ability to bring it from the water to eat out of his hand at any time by standing in the garden and whistling in a peculiar manner.

The annual reunion of the Connecticut Division of Loyal Home Workers was held at the home of the vice-president, Mrs. Harriet B. (Lewis) Haight (36 v p 25 Vol. IV) at Torrington, on July 4, 1899.

Representatives were present from several towns in the state. The reports of the officers showed the order to be in a good financial condition. The old board of officers were re-elected, after which  a vote of thanks was tendered to Brother and Sister Haight for the splendid manner in which they entertained their guests, both at the well-filled tables and socially. So well were all pleased that they voted to meet at the same place at their semi-annual meeting on Feb. 22, 1900.

WILLIAM LEWIS, 1735, Chester.Pa. CHAPTER III.

BY MARY J. LONGNECKER, ALLEN-TOWN, PENN.

In 1845, the year before Samuel (3) v p 14, Vol. X) came to Allentown, he was engaged by Bevan & Humphries, a prominent and wealthy shipping Lewis took him to the top of one of firm of Philadelphia, who were on the the furnaces and pointed out a good alert for investments, to make an examination of the Lehigh Valley with special reference to the location of an rolling mill for Mr. Haywood, the anthracite furnace, for the making of iron by the use of anthracite coal had by this time been demonstrated as entirely safe and successful by the five vears' operation of the Crane Iron Company's works, at Catasaugua. Mr. Lewis immediately turned his attention to this city and reported to his employers that Allentown was the most favorable site for the erection of the proposed furnace, his decision being induced by the close proximity of ore beds and the transportation facilities offered by the canal. machinery for these two furnaces was supplied by Messrs. Haywood & Snyder, of Philadelphia. After the erection of the two furnaces a corporation was formed, with a capital of $200,000, the Allentown members of which were Samuel Lewis, David E. Wilson, Henry King. Esq., and Christian Pretz, and the other furnaces were built by this company, then, as now, known as' the Allentown Iron Company. At one time 900 men were employed and dividends from 20 to 45 per cent were paid annually, and the dividends repaid the investors six and one-half times the amount of their investments.

Samael Lewis remained the superintendent until 1878, and to him was very largely due their wonderful success, for few furnaces in this country have yielded larger returns than these. He was succeeded by the present County Commissioner, Stephen B. Neumoyer.

In 1862 Benjamin Haywood of Pottsville, came to this city and asked the advice of Mr. Lewis whether he should start a new rolling mill here or enlarge his mill at Pottsville. location, below the furnace, and said "build there." Mr. Lewis erected the firm of Haywood & Snyder supplying the machinery. The mill at that time was known as the Lehigh Rolling Mill, and is now a part of the plant of the Allentown Rolling Mill Company. Mr. Lewis' son, Joseph, was superintendent, of the mill from the start until July 1866, when his health gave out and he made a trip to the Pacific coast, and after that time the concern was carried on by Francis S. Kent and Thomas C. Brainard as managers.

Severe were the interpretations of the law, and curious and heavy the penalty of infraction. In an old parchment dated June 30, 1701, signed by Daniell Wetherell, Judge, there is an order to the constable to arrest anyone found loitering or strolling about on the Lord's Day. The following extracts are from the County Court records:

"John Lewis and Sarah Chapman presented for sitting together on the Lord's Day under an apple-tree in Goodman Chapman's orehard."

In 1851 David C. Vance borrowed from Jackson Lewis the sum of $1,300 at the then current rate of interest of 8 per cent, per month, to be computed monthly, security being the real estate and its improvements in San Jose, Cal. The note is yet unpaid.

The note and mortgage, after the manner of such things, made its way through the courts in precedings and foreclosures, and in the next dozen years the $1,300 grew like Jack's beanstalk. A return of sale finally showed the total amount due the man to whom the note and mortgage had been assigned, Morris M. Wise, in round numbers, that included interest, costs and sheriff's fees, $21,000,000.

At a Presbyterian Sunday School

pienic a tragedy was narrowly averted by the bravery of a young visitor. George Burditt, youngest son of W. Dean Burditt, tipped over a canoe in which he was riding, at Three-Mile Point, and he was thrown into the water, which is quite deep in that place. He could not swim, and realizing his peril called for help as he went down. There were few people on the dock and no older swimmers. Harry Lewis, son of Edwin Lewis, of Bowerstown, promptly jumped to young Burditt's aid and succeeded in holding him up until some young men who were in a boat off the point rowed there and got him into the boat, and assisted Lewis to the shore. Lewis' act was as brave as was ever witnessed, and that it was done for a dear friend makes it no less praiseworthy. But for the timely pluck of Lewis there is no doubt Burditt would have been drowned before other aid could have reached him.

S. A. Lewis, of New Haven, Ct. has commenced work on a new residence on Whalley Avenue. It is to be of wood, 40x55 feet, and will cost about $8,000. It will be finished in hard woods and heated by hot water. Mr. Lewis is having the work done by the day.
