LOYAL LEWIS LEGION.

I. Its Object. II. Its Aim. III. Its Success. IV. Its Appeal.

By Frank P. Lewis, Seattle, Wash.

II. The Aim of L. L. L.

Among the fundamental principles and objects of L. L. L. to be developed and utilized for present pleasure and future profit, may be mentioned:—a knowledge of who and what our ancestors were; to make a record of who and what we are; to cultivate the acquaintance and friendship of relatives; to make Lewisiana the best family biographical and genealogical journal on earth; to establish free collegiate scholarships for worthy Lewis boys and girls; to give honor to whom honor is due; to encourage all to lead more useful and honorable lives.

The list of charter members under the red shield is completed and Edith S. Lewis of Campbell, Calif., a member (161) of Book I, the niece of Hon. Frank P. Lewis, Supreme Chancellor of L. L. L., has the honor of being No. 1 under the white shield.

Alfred Henry Lewis.

Among the full paged "Intimate Portraits of Men and Women who are Doing Interesting Things" in Christmas number of Everybody's Magazine is that of Alfred Henry Lewis of whom it is stated:—

"The personality of the author of "Wolfville" is as picturesque as his style. With his writings the readers of Everybody's are familiar but literature is only one of his manifestations. A fascinating talker, he is full of reminiscence of a checkered career, for his knowledge of frontier life was gained as a cowboy in New Mexico and Arizona, and his intimacy with statesmen and politicians was acquired as Washington correspondent of sundry Western and Eastern newspapers. He has written a life of Richard Croker which excited strenuous controversy, has contributed largely to the magazines and is prominently before the public now as the successful author of "Peggy O'Neal" and "The Boss."

When a man writes what he knows, you have a book worth reading. "The Boss" is the work of one who served for years as a newspaper correspondent in Washington and then, coming to New York, became a familiar of Tammany Hall and its greatest chief. No one ever had better opportunities for getting at the New York political organization from the inside than Alfred Henry Lewis, and this extraordinarily vivid character study into which he has poured the observation of years is entitled even to greater attention than its sterling merits as a story will gain for it. It's a big novel, but it is also a powerful document."

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.Explanations, Abbreviations, Etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used: as b. for born; d.

died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; un. not married; v. p. see page; etc.

BENJAMIN LEWIS, Stratford, Conn.
Chapter CCVIII.

From the Seymour, Ct., Record.

"Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett Lewis, wife of Deacon Wells Lewis, who died October 1, 1903, was a native of the town of Weston and came to Monroe in her youth. Here, together with her husband, she joined the Congregational Church, of which she remained a member for half a century. She had been a sufferer for years, this keeping her from active participation in church and social life. Mrs. Lewis was exceptionally devoted to her family and home and was one of the noblest of mothers and most faithful of wives. Seven children survive her, four daughters and three sons. Interment was made at Cutler's Farm Cemetery. The six pallbearers at the funeral were Mrs. Lewis' sons and three grandsons.

Mrs. F. L. Barr of Great Bend, N. Y., a gt. gr. dau., has several interesting souvenirs consisting of three of the silver buttons worn upon Col. Arnold's coat during the Revolutionary War, also a sugar shovel and salt shovel made from some of the same buttons. She also has the old turn keys which he used while a surgeon. When he came to Champion he took up a tract of 700 acres of land which now consists of farms owned by several different people, Mrs. Barr being the only one of the descendants now residing upon any portion of the original 700 acres. Both Arnold and his wife are buried in what is known as the Evergreen Cemetery situated on a portion of the above mentioned tract, but which was given by Eseek (30) after he came into possession of it, for a cemetery.

Chapter LIV.

From the Hastings, Mich. Banner.

"On the afternoon of a summer's day, August 26, 1836, nearly 67 years ago, there might have been seen a covered wagon containing a stalwart man of 34 years and five children between the ages of 11 and 2 years, driving through the then unbroken wilderness of Barry County, in the Territory of Michigan.

"Accompanying this wagon, was a woman on horseback, carefully guiding her grey saddle-horse over the rough roads of the new country. She had in this way performed nearly the whole of the journey, they having started from Wethersfield, Genesee County, New York, three weeks before, taking Canada in their route, and expecting to settle in Indiana.

"This party consisted of my father, William Lewis (93 v p 6 Vol. IV) and Mary Goodwin, his wife, three daughters and a son, also an adopted daughter, Flavia Stone. We were at this time about to spend the night with a brother, Calvin Lewis (248 v p 134 Vol. VII) who came to Michigan a few weeks in advance of us. Tired and travel worn, weary and hungry, we halted at nightfall in a lovely valley in the wilderness where a log house was in the process of erection. Living springs of clear cold water were gushing from a bank, and on a near by poplar tree someone had fastened a shingle marked "Yankee Springs."

Chapter CCCLIX.

From the Wellsboro, Penn.; Agitator.

"The death of Mrs. A. C. Shaw, wife of the pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Wellsboro, early Sunday morning, Nov. 8, 1903, was a shock to the whole community. Her sickness was of very short duration as she attended the Institute lecture on the Tuesday evening before. Unica Lewis Farnham was b Silver Creek, N. Y., where in 1865 she m Rev. Augustus C. Shaw (v p 87 Vol. XIV). They resided for eight years at Clayville, N. Y., and for the next ten years at Fulton, N. Y.

"In 1880 Rev. Dr. Shaw was called as pastor of the Presbyterian Church in this borough. During the almost 24 years residence of the family here Mrs. Shaw held the respect, confidence and love of a wide circle which was not confined to the members of her own church. In the church she was active beyond her strength and self-sacrificing in her efforts to advance any good work.

"Mrs. Shaw was the mother of five children, one of whom died at the age of five. Those surviving are Augustus F. Shaw, professor of chemistry in Mackenzie College, Sao Paulo, Brazil; Adelaide, wife of F. M. Bodine; Dr. Farnham H. Shaw, of this borough, and Laura M., of the Mansfield Normal School faculty. She also leaves two brothers, Ammi Farnham of San Diego, Cal., and W. L. Farnham of Silver Creek.

Chapter LXXIX.

By George Harlan Lewis, N. Y. City.

William (369 v p 9 Vol. XII) a nephew of Eber (355 v last issue) b Lyme, Ct., 1763, went to live at Marlow in 1774 when 11 years old. He, without doubt, made his home with his Uncle Eber. He returned to Lyme and remained ten years where he married Miss Annie Peck, b Jan'y 24, 1765. Returning to Marlow he purchased land and made a settlement. In a few years he purchased an addition to his farm of Elisha Huntley. On this new purchase was a house into which he moved. A few years later he built a new two-story dwelling house where he lived until his death. When he and his wife had been in town six years they made a visit to Lyme. To prepare their two children for the journey Mrs. Lewis carded, spun wool and made each article of clothing the children wore, buying nothing except one-half yard of shoe binding with which to fit out the shoes. Mr. Lewis was a very prominent man in town affairs, holding many of its offices, being selectman for several years and Representative to the State Legislature in 1824-1827, 1828 and 1834.

Chapter CCXCII.

By Lester W. Lewis, Clarinda, Iowa.

This family Bible (v p 89 Vol. XIV) states these Remarkable Events:—

The cold Sabbath, so called, was in Feb. 1773.

Dark day was May 20th, 1780.

Mar. 20th, 1801, was the greatest flood known by this generation.

Feb. 2nd, 1802, the first snow fell that covered the ground this winter and was not more than one and one-half inches deep and melted in a few days.

May 8th, 1803, there was a tedious snow storm and was followed by several cold nights when water froze one-fourth inch deep. Apple trees were past their bloom yet the season was very fruitful, especially for cider.

June 16th, 1806, total eclipse of the sun for several minutes, was very cold.

He came West with his father Jonathan (390) in 1816, and settled on a farm near Dover, Ind. For ten years or more prior to 1842 he with his brothers Freeborn (2031) and Richard (2059) trafficked on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers between Cincinnati and New Orleans when flat-boating was the principal method of carrying on commercial intercourse. He then worked in Cincinnati until the death of his father when he assumed charge of the home farm at Dover. He m Oct. 28, 1847, at Guilford, Ind., Catharine Kennedy Campbell, b Feb. 23, 1825. In March 1862 he moved with his family to a farm on Snow Hill (so named from having been settled by the Snows whose ancestors came from Barnstable, Mass.) and resided there till his death. He was regarded as an honorable, peaceful and quiet citizen, having the esteem of all who knew him. He ever looked upon the bright side of life and in his family was known as a model man. Together with his wife, he brought up his child ren in the fear and admonition of the Lord.

In the year 1863 he united with the Mt. Carmel Universalist Church and remained ever afterward an honored member. He was buried at the Braysville Cemetery.

Chapter CCXVII.

From The Youth's Companion.

Not one of the ancient myths is more charming than that of the Dioscuri, the twin sons of Leda, who sailed among the Argonauts after the Golden Fleece.

The Dioscuri of American story are Lewis and Clark, the two young captains who broke the way across the continent, facing appalling nature, confronting the wildest savages, yet shedding almost no blood and perpetuating no cruelty or treachery as they won their way.

We have now to consider what Thomas Jefferson (author of the Declaration of Independence, the man destined to double the area of the United States by the Louisiana purchase, and immediately afterward to promote the most memorable exploration which our country has ever seen) did in sweeping the mystery from that vast western half of the Mississippi Valley.

In fact, the long-headed Jefferson for some time before the purchase, even when it was Spanish territory, had meditated an exploration, and had had in mind to command it Meriwether Lewis, a young captain in the army, who had been his private secretary and had grown up under his own eye. Lewis was an able and vigorous fellow, of fair education, a perfect rider and marksman, and trained as a soldier under the famous General Wayne.

Now that Louisiana was gained erson hesitated no longer, but commissioned Lewis promptly. The latter at once—toward the end of 1803—began to prepare.

In April, 1805, the party was promptly ready for a new start. The great boat, whose draft of three feet was too great for the upper river, was sent back to St. Louis, bearing a portion of the party, and records and specimens for Jefferson.

Near the site of Portland, they felt in the Columbia the heavy pulse of the near-at-hand sea. A few stages more and, at Astoria, the surf of the Pacific wet them with its spray, and their task was done.

The continent had been crossed; the desert had given up its secret. In the spring of 1806 Lewis and Clark set out on their return.

Floating down the Missouri during the late summer is an easy journey Lewis and Clark reached St. Louis, September 23, 1806, saluting, as they landed, the flag of the United States, flying at the post—the flag which they had carried so far. And thus they pass into history.

The Dioscuri of old became the constellation Gemini, the Twins, the heavens themselves stooping to preserve the memory of such champions and sailors. In a former age Lewis and Clark might easily have become established among the stars. But it is well as it is; for in the galaxy of American heroes their blended luster shines with a bright, pure and kindly beam that is scarcely surpassed.

Chapter CCXIX.

From the Fort Worth (Texas) Telegram.

W. J. Lewis of Fort Worth and Judge T. F. Lewis of Dallas, the former a train dispatcher in the local offices of the Texas and Pacific railroad company and the latter a prominent attorney of his home city, are particularly interested in the movement inaugurated by the management of St. Louis Exposition to set aside one day during the fair to be known as "Lewis Day."

The Texas representatives of the family are relatives of Meriwether Lewis of Lewis-Clark fame and first governor of Louisiana in whose honor the day at the exposition will be given. Many interesting curios and relics originally owned by the celebrated explorer and first presiding officer over the present state of Missouri are cherished possessions of the Lewis families now residing in Fort Worth and Dallas.

The old Masonic certificate of membership, herewith reproduced, is now the property of W. J. Lewis. T. F. Lewis cherishes among other former properties of Meriwether Lewis, an old hunting knife, both the certificate and the knife having been carried with the explorer on his entire expedition to the Pacific coast.

The Masonic document is valuable on account of its age, as well as for the reason that its original owner attained the distinction which he did in the earlier history of his country. It was issued at Staunton, Virginia, in 1799, and bears the original signature of Meriwether Lewis. One feature in particular which attaches great value to the certificate from the standpoint of the present owner, is that the scribe of the old Virginia lodge, Vincent Tapp, whose signature appears on the face of the certificate, was W. J. Lewis's great grandfather.

Chapter CCXX.

From the President's Message.

I trust that the congress will continue to favor in all proper ways the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. This exposition commemorates the Louisiana purchase, which was the first great step in the expansion which made us a continental nation. The expedition of Lewis and Clark across the continent followed thereon, and marked the beginning of the process of exploration and colonization which thrust our national boundaries to the Pacific. The acquisition of the Oregon country, including the present states of Oregon and Washington, was a fact of immense importance in our history; first giving us our place on the Pacific seaboard, and making ready the way for our ascendancy in the commerce of the greatest of the oceans. The centennial of our establishment upon the western coast by the expedition of Lewis and Clark is to be celebrated at Portland, Oregon, by an exposition in the summer of 1905, and this event should receive recognition and support.

Chapter LX.

From Sanderson's Biog. of the Signers.

From the termination of the Canadian war to the commencement of the Revolution, Mr. Lewis uniformly cooperated with those early patriots, who opposed the gradual encroachments of the British government on the rights of the American people. . . . Of this congress (Oct. 1765 N. Y..) Mr. Lewis was an active and distinguished member . . . Mr. Lewis was one of the first to enrol his name among the "Sons of Liberty" an association which exhibited the earliest dawn of a determination to resist force by force. When it was attempted to put the stamp act in operation, he retired from business to his country seat on Long Island, where he continued to reside until the year 1771. Being then desirous of establishing his eldest son in the mercantile profession, he embarked with him for England and towards the close of that year, returned with a large quantity of dry goods and recommenced business under the firm of Francis Lewis & Son. On the commencement of hostilities in 1774-5 he again retired from commercial pursuits.
