LEWISIANA

A MONTHLY INTER-FAMILY PAPER.

Its object is to bring all of the name of Lewis and their kin into mutual acquaintance and friendship, to discover for each one his kindred and keep him posted in regard to all their trials and successes in life, and to record for use of themselves and their posterity the traditions, biography and genealogy of all the Lewises.

TERMS.

One Dollar a year, payable on receipt of the July number. Single numbers, Ten Cents each. Remittance should be by Check or Express Order. If P. O. Order, make payable at Guilford, Conn. Advertising rates furnished on application. Address all communications to the publisher,

CARLL A. LEWIS, Guilford, Conn., Box 194.

LEWISIANA is entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Guilford, Conn., and is printed by The Shore Line Times Press, Guilford.

INDEXES.

Indexes have been prepared in the form of card catalogues, which are kept completed to the date of the latest issue. These indexes cover both Lewis Letter and Lewisiana and are for all male Lewises and for all other names than Lewis. Until some means is devised by which these can be printed the Editor will furnish these references to all subscribers who will send stamps to cover cost of reply.

Captain Anthony Lewis of Burton Hall died soon after the date of his will (Aug. 1, 1634), and there is a monument to his memory above the door of the south porch in Gresford Church, with an inscription in Welsh, of which the following is a translation.

“This is in memory of Captain Anthony Lewis of Burton, in this Parish, who was a Benefactor to this Church by restoring its windows, pews, and roofs. Who also left a testimony of his love to the poor of the Parish forever, by providing bread for them every week. This was erected by Sir Thomas Trevor, Knight and Baronet, as well from his own piety, in memory of his relative, as from an earnest desire to fulfil the wish of his dear and worthy Father, Sir Thomas Trevor, Knight, one of the Barons of King Charles’ Exchequer, throughout the reign of the said King, the 31st day of August, 1659.''

Extra Issues.

Books VIII, XII, XXIV, XXXV, LIV,
v last issue for details.

Put me down as a subscriber to fund for Book XII.

W. R. Jackson, St. Thomas, Ontario.

I will be one of twenty for Bk.
XXIV.

Martha P. Woodall, N. Y. City.

I will contribute one dollar for Book VIII, two if necessary.

W. T. Lewis, Vassar, Mich.

I will be one of 20, 10 or 4 for Book
VIII.

Hunter C. White, Providence, R. I.

I will be one of twenty or one of ten in Book VIII.

Mrs. E. M. Haynes, Bridgeport, Conn.

I will contribute two dollars for extra issue of Book XXIV.

Rev. Wm. G. W. Lewis, N. Y. city.

If there seems to be an interest on the part of the members of Book LIV for an extra number, I would be pleased to join with them. You have published so many extracts from letters making adverse criticisms as to the plan of your paper that I feel disposed to express my indorsement of every detail of it... However, there is a matter that interests me much more than an extra, viz. an index, and I would be willing to contribute a much larger sum for that purpose and I am inclined to the opinion that there are many others, if indeed, all your subscribers, would do the same. Let each subscriber for Vol. XVI pay two dollars instead of the usual one and let us have an index complete to July 1905, Vols. I to XV inclusive.

E. J. Lewis, Torrington, Wyo.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, Etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page; etc.

 nomination of Abraham Lincoln in Chicago in 1860.

Although advanced in years, Mrs.
 Shiverick was always young in spirit and took delight in the pleasures of much younger people. She did not appear to grow old but was always bright and interested. She had an intense fondness for automobiling and enjoyed a number of pleasant rides last summer with her nephew, James Mae Lewis. During her declining years she has been tenderly cared for by her niece, Celia Lewis Rogers.

She is survived by a number of nephews and nieces and three brothers: David W. (527) of N. Y. City, James (524) of Florida and Henry Clay (526) of Falmouth. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. John H. Quint of the 1st Cong. ch. of which she had been a member for many years. Interment in Oak Grove Cemetery.

Dan Lewis, (2221 v p 117 Vol. XV) taught in the schools of Atchison county, Mo., from 1876 to 1884, and was then elected County Superintendent. Speaking of him the Atchison county history says:—"The high state of the schools of this county is largely due to its excellent teachers and the untiring zeal of its young superintendent, Prof. D Lewis, whose portrait we were so fortunate as to secure for these pages. He is the youngest superintendent in the state, being first elected when barely of age, and is now serving his third term. He was born and raised in the county, his father, Dr. John Lewis, being one of the first settlers. He has made some reputation as an orator and his opinion of the law in regard to teachers is considered of the best. He occasionally writes an educational article and is one of the authors of "The New Arithmetic," a work of the highest merit. He is a great friend of the little children. Such men quietly mould the future of this country and they should be encouraged." In 1890 Dan Lewis became president of the Jansen Bank at Jansen, Neb., but in 1901 removed to Carlisle, Ark., for his health. EDMUND LEWIS, Lynn, Mass.

Chapter CLXXI.

From a Lynn Daily Paper.

It was in January 1873, that Jacob M. Lewis (65 v last issue) became Mayor of the city and continued in that capacity until 1877. During the first year of his term of service the soldiers' monument was erected in City Hall square, the first specimen of ornamental art ever provided at public expense in the city. After Mr. Lewis's retirement from the shoe business he engaged in the real estate and insurance business. He was the founder and organizer of the Lynn Mutual Aid Association.

Mr. Lewis was a gentleman of quiet and unobtrusive manners, easy and agreeable to all, yet rather inclined to reserve in his general deportment. His action, while always firm, was cautious rather than precipitate, so that he was rarely, if ever, forced to retreat from a position once taken. His administrations of the city's affairs were marked by a decided spirit of public economy, yet no enterprise that was for the real good of the community ever lacked support from him.

In person Mr. Lewis was of average height, with a slight disposition to stoutness. He was a calm-spirited, thoughtful man, whose aim was to live well and happily himself, and to do what he might to secure a like benefit to those around him.

Mr. Lewis is survived by a widow. They had no ch.

In honor of Mr. Lewis's memory, as an ex-Chief Executive of the city, the flags at the City Hall were placed at half-mast.

Chapter CCXLIV.

The Lewis and Clark Expedition.

From the Outlook.

Commemorating, as it does, the one hundredth anniversary of an important expedition sent out by Thomas Jefferson, commanded by his private secretary (Capt. Meriwether Lewis 64) and one for which Congress made what was at that time a large appropriation, the celebration is of National importance and should attract interest in the East as well as in the West.

The detailed accounts of the expedition of Captains Lewis and Clark have hardly been exceeded in romantic interest by accounts of later explorations in any part of the globe. The record of the journey was read with breathless interest on the return of the party, for these men were the first white men to cross the American continient between the country belonging to the Spaniards and the country belonging to the English, and the first to traverse the valleys of the Missouri, the Yellowstone and the Columbia, a route more difficult than that taken to California a few years later.

It is a singular fact that while the world is making steady progress in art, science and improvements, and society is constantly looking forward with eager anticipation to the future, we are ever turning backward to recall the events and people of the past.

Down through the line of years, history has been making material from the lives of men who must have possessed a degree of physical courage, moral courage, or courage of principle which marks their history as that of heroes. None of the stories appeal to us so strongly as those which relate to the heroic deeds, vicissitudes or adventures of those who are near to us by blood and name. Few Americans are more unworthy that title than he who cherishes no pride in the worthy deeds of his ancestors, who at some time, in some degree won fame, honor or distinction, and having died left a name that awakens our pride and ambition. The definition of the name, "Lewis" is "Noted Warrior," and it is of one of those who bore that dis-tion that I wish to speak of in this article.

Among the most noted of Lewises was Captain Meriwether Lewis. He was the son of William Lewis, and was born in Charlottesville, Albemarle county, Virginia, August 18th, 1774, and died near Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 11, 1809. He descended from one of the most distinguished families of Virginia. His Grandfather was Col. Robert Lewis, whose brother John was a member of the King's Council before the Revolution, and whose brother Fielding married the sister of Gen'l. Washington. William, the father of Meriwether, was the youngest of five sons, Charles the fourth son, commanded one of the first regiments raised in Virginia at the beginning of the war.

Nicholas, the second son, led a regiment during the successful expedition against the Cherokee Indians in 1776. He is described as a man "who was endeared to all who knew him, on account of his courteous disposition, benevolent heart and engaging manners." He was often requested to settle private differences among the people of his county, frequently being the choice of all the interested parties.

When the first guns were fired at Lexington, Meriwether Lewis was less than one year old. As his father and uncles were men noted for courage and patriotism, he was taught those principles from his earliest childhood; he was accustomed to the stories of brave, heroic men, who loved and served their country. As a result he acquired a spirit of courage and daring very unusual in a boy so young. When but eight years of age, it is said that he would take his dogs, and go alone in the middle of the night hunting for raccoons and opossums, braving storms of great severity, wading through snow or water he would pursue the game, when older hunters would have been overcome by discouragement. This trait of persistence was but one of the many which combined to form the sturdy, determined character of the man.

FRANCIS LEWIS, Wales to N. Y.

Chapter LXXI.

From Sanderson's Biog. of the Signers.

At the time of his first election to Congress in 1775, Francis Lewis (1) unfortunately removed his family and effects to his country seat on Long Island, which was plundered, in the fall of 1776, by the British light-horse, under the command of Colonel Birch. All his immovable property was wantonly destroyed, as well as his books and papers of every description. . . . Mrs. Lewis, with inconceivable brutality, was placed in close confinement, without a bed to lie upon, and without any change of clothes whatever; in which situation she remained during several months. This disgraceful affair was brought before Congress on the eighth of Nov. 1776, and then referred to the Board of War; on Dec. 3d, it was resolved that a "Mrs. Chamier be permitted to go to her husband at New York and that Mrs. Lewis at Flushing, on Long Island, be required in exchange." It appears, however, that this unfortunate victim was finally exchanged through the influence of General Washington, for Mrs. Barow, the wife of the British paymaster-general and Mrs. Kempe, the wife of the attorney general of the province. The consequences of her imprisonment was the entire loss of health; and in the course of two years her life fell a sacrifice to this modern act of vandalism. . . .

The property of Mr. Lewis was almost all sacrificed on the altar of patriotism; and the peace which established the independence of his country, found him reduced from affluence to nearly a state of poverty; his real estate being little more than sufficient for the discharge of his British debts.

On Dec. 30, 1803, this venerable man and excellent citizen, was gathered to his fathers, in the 90th year of his age, bequeathing to his posterity a name which shall long flourish in the annals of liberty and affording an example of virtue, constancy and personal sacrifice, which, if properly appreciated, will serve as a model upon which the rising patriot may found his fame, and to which the veteran statesman may look with mingled emotions of rivalry and admiration.

From Unity for Dec. 4, 1902.

It is not strange in these days that a man should in one life time acquire a competency. As the term now goes, perhaps Enoch Lewis (v last issue) would not be listed among wealthy men, but it is worthy of note that here is a life held to the highest standards of ethics, committed to public service, interested in ideas, and a lover of the beautiful, who did succeed in gathering about him a lovable and loving family in a beautiful home, and going to his final rest in the fullness of 81 years, honored, trusted, beloved, by countless numbers of those who in many ways had been permitted to partake of his serenity, to share in his bounty, to rest in his wisdom.

He was business man of whom Rev. Joseph May, his pastor, was able to say, "The keynote of his character was integrity, soundness of mind, perfect steadfastness, absolute addiction to the right in every relation and on every question." In contemplation of such a life we may well say, Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord.
