Velorus C. Lewis,

Jesus did not teach the non-reality of the visible universe, but he taught that mind governs the human body, and this fact is admitted by all thinkers of today; they simply disagree as to extent, and no man living is able to designate the extent or define the limit of such action.

From the author's Life and Health as Taught by Jesus.

I teach and practice mental therapeutics, give both present and absent treatments, and take classes for instruction, having for more than ten years given my entire time and energies to this work.

Lewis Reunions.

Mrs. Delia Lewis Thompson, Secretary, sends notice of the Sixth Annual Picnic of the Lewis Family on Saturday, Aug. 27, 1904, at H. M. Lewis's Grove, Berwick, Ill.

The first reunion of the Lewis family in the last nineteen years, was held Aug. 18, 1904 at the cottage of Sanford and Myron Lewis, on the eastern shore of Lake Bonaparte, N. Y. All of the six brothers and four sisters with their families, were present. The celebration lasted all day and well into the night, ending with a huge boufire on a big rock that sticks out of the water a little way from shore.

Annoying, But Alas Frequent.

Miss Caroline E. Casper writes inquiring about Amos Lewis (v p 176 Vol XII) who m Laura Carpenter. A letter giving all the details in our possession is sent to the only address the letter contains—Pittsfield, Mass., but is returned by U. S. Postal Service as unclaimed. Who can give correct address?

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, Etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b for born; d died; m married; m (1) first wife; dau. daughter unm. not married; v p see page, etc.

GEORGE LEWIS, Hopkinton, R. I.
Chapter LXII.
By Mary M. (Lewis) Hoyt in the Michigan Tradesman.

We were on the direct line of the great Indian trail running from Detroit to Grand Rapids, which passed directly through Barry county. But we were not long alone. The fur trader and the speculator were abroad in the land, and to fill the increasing demands of the weary traveler, our little cottage of two rooms was extended, building after building, until we occupied "nine stories on the ground," seven distinct buildings in a row in the front and two additional in the back. They presented neither an imposing nor graceful appearance but were the hurried creation of backwoods life, when there was no time to waste on architecture, symmetry or beauty.

The fame of the place spread throughout the country and so brisk was business at the Old Mansion, House," as it was called, that it was no uncommon thing for one hundred people to tarry there for a night, while sixty teams were often stabled there between sunset and sunrise.

The extreme ends of the old house were named. The one farthest north was "Grand Rapids," and the extreme south was "Kalamazoo." The Kalamazoo was considered the "best room" and was furnished rather better than the others and the better class of people occupied it generally, bridal parties, etc. All the other buildings have tumbled to ruin. This building alone stands out all by itself. It is close to the road down in the hollow, seemingly proud of the fact that it has survived all of the changes of the last century and inviting admiration and respect because of it. If the old building could speak what stories it could tell, what historical information it could impart that would be of interest and benefit to future generations.

ROBERT LEWIS, Wales to Va.

Chapter CCXXXIV.

From Book Notes, Providence, R. I. Jefferson, Thomas. President's Message communicating Discoveries made in exploring the Missouri, Red River, and Washita, by Captains Lewis and Clarke, Doctor Sibley and Mr. Dunbar, with a statistical account of the countries adjacent. 8 vo., pp. 176, Washington, 1806. Price $5.00. The only part of this "Message" reprinted by Richardson is Mr. Jefferson's letter accompanying it, two pages in length.

In February, 1806, President Jefferson laid before Congress a most interesting series of accounts concerning the People and the natural resources of the countries acquired by the purchase of Louisiana. I give a brief account of them in Mr. Jefferson's own language. "In pursuance of a measure proposed to Congress by a message of January 18th, 1803, and sanctioned by their appropriation for carrying it into execution, Captain Meriwether Lewis, of the regiment of Infantry, was appointed with a party of men to explore the river Missouri from its mouth to its source, and, crossing the highlands by the shortest portage, to seek the best water communication thence to the Pacific Ocean, and Lieut. Clarke was appointed second in command. They were to enter into conference with the Indian nations on their route, with a view to the establishment of commerce with them. They entered the Missouri May 14th, 1804, and on the 1st of November took up their winter quarters near the Mandan, 1609 miles above the mouth of the river." This expedition seems to have been started before the territory was ceded. The Treaty was signed 30th April, 1803; ratified by the U. S. Senate 21st October, 1803; payment fixed by Congress 30th November, 1803; formal possession taken 20th December, 1803.

JOSEPH LEWIS, Swansea, Mass.

Chapter LVII.

From the Boston Evening Transcript.

*7190. 3. Lewis. D. H. B. July 6, 1904. In the March number of Lewisiana, 1903, the question was asked:—"Who was Joseph Lewis of Swansea?"

At that time a statement was prepared giving my reasons for thinking that he was a son of George of Barnstable.

Possibly I am in error, though I think I found at that time evidence to sustain Deane's statement. Those notes having been mislaid, would refer D. H. B. to Lewisiana for full answer to inquiry.

(As the conclusion v p 155 Vol. XIII of that inquiry was that Joseph and Nathaniel were sons of Edmund (1.XXXIII) the Editor fails to see how the article can be quoted in support of the statement that Joseph was son of George (1.XXIV). Will not L. L. L. make careful search for those notes as with the exception of the mss. genealogy referred to on p 25, of Vol. IX no evidence in support of Deane's statement has as yet been forthcoming. Ed.).

JOHN LEWIS, Ireland to Virginia.
Chapter CIII.

From New Orleans Daily Picayune.

John Hampden Lewis (425 v p 32 Vol. XV) B. A., B. S., M. D., A. M., d Nov. 19, 1893, in his home in this city, passing quietly and painlessly from a life that for 83 years he bore with marked credit to himself and as a worthy scion of a historic family.
As a physician he was honored, as a scholar he was admired, as a man he was esteemed and loved not alone for his accomplishments and learning, but for his nobility of character and his thorough manliness. He was known to three generations of citizens and the respect that his contemporaries felt for the young practitioner grew with the years. The present generation knows how well deserved were the thirteen years of life accorded him beyond the allotted period of three score and ten.

From 1839 when he first entered into practice after a decade of almost constant study of medicine until about twenty years ago, he was among the foremost physicians of this city and section. The habits of close study that he formed as a student never forsook him and throughout his long life his spare moments were given to adding to the already great knowledge of his cultured mind, whose capacity seemed boundless. His love for his chosen profession did not, however, crowd other matters from his mind and until the day that he was confined to his bed by his final illness his enjoyment of the literary masters of Greece and Rome, together with the thinkers of modern ages, was as keen as when he was at college.

EVAN LEWIS, Wales to Penn.

Chapter XL.

By E. J. Lewis, Torrington, Wyo.

The compilation of the following records I began about five years ago and have worked very industriously at it ever since. The dates of marriages, births and deaths are generally obtained from Friends' records, but in many cases it has been very difficult to find the records, as so many meetings have been discontinued, and the records have been transferred from place to place. Only those who have made similar researches can realize how much labor these few pages represent.

Evan (6) the earliest member of the Lewis family of whom we have any record and the only mention we find of him is in the statement that when an old man he accompanied his son Henry (7) to America. No record of his death and nothing to indicate that he was a member of the Society of Friends.

Henry (7) was born at Narbeth, a little market place in Pembrokeshire, So. Wales, m 1st mo. 12, 1669, at Landerau, So. Wales, Margaret Philpin or Proutherin. In the latter part of 1681 or 1682 he with his family came to America and settled in Haverford Township, Chester co.,

Pa. He was a member of the Society of Friends and brought with him a certificate of membership, for himself and family and located within the limits of the colony founded by William Penn. He was a carpenter by trade and was active in church and civil affairs. About six years after his settlement in America he died and was buried 6 mo. 17, 1688. 4 ch. b.

S. I. Henry, b 10 mo. 26, 1671.

123. II. Sarah, b 5 mo. 2, 1673, d infancy.

9. III. Samuel, b 8 mo. 1, 1676; the records of the Friends meeting at Radnor, Pa., show that 1 mo. 9, 1698, a committee was appointed to draw a certificate for him, but do not state to what meeting, if any, it was directed. It is possible, though not at all probable, that he is the head of Book XLIII. In such case, to agree with other records, it would have been necessary for him to return to Wales for a time. It is possible that Friends' records may yet be found where he left his certificate.

Chapter IV.

A Plantation Pastoral Visitation from Ridlon's Saco Valley.

Parson Coffin illustrated the theory that a house-going minister makes a church-going people. He was accustomed to make annual or semi-annual visits to the remote neighborhoods. . . . These visitations of the learned person were looked forward to with great interest and pleasure by those families comprising the settlements on the west side of the Saco River; they were occasions of social enjoyment and a break in the monotony of daily toil which stimulated hope and made existence more tolerable. . . . At an early hour Monday morning the mothers, with children in arms, began to assemble at the house of Aunt Rachel Field to assist in arranging the house and preparing the necessary food. Some grown-up daughters were put in charge of the small folk, while the whist matrons, with shirts tucked up and arms laid bare for business, went to work with a cheerful good will to "rid up the house" and make all things tidy. There was Hannah Cousins and her next-door neighbor, Katy Lewis, with soap, sand and scrub-cloth, who went down upon the puncheoned floor and scoured it unto snowy cleanness. . . . Nearly all of the elderly fathers had served in the army of the Revolution, leaving their wives and children at home, in the midst of a howling wilderness, in poverty and but poorly protected. These sons of the clearing were hard-hearted and bronzed by exposure, but there was no sham about them; they were just what they appeared to be; brave, generous hearts were biding under their homespun to the tune of an honest purpose. Their speech was unclassical and somewhat rude, but it was not the vehicle of a villainous soul, they "said what they meant and meant what they said". . . . Parson Coffin, of course, was placed in the seat of honor at the table-head, being supported on the right and left by the two brothers, Thomas (3) and Ebenezer (5) Lewis, both of them local preachers, who undertook coarse work in their line when called upon by a gospel-hungry people. . . . It had long been known from Saco to Pearsontown that Parson Coffin not only took kindly to, but was extremely fond of, such Indian puddings as these old mothers knew how to make. . . . Moreover, it was a custom in those days to pass the food to each guest and allow them to appropriate as much as was deemed sufficient to meet the demands of an appetite, the compass of which each was supposed to know best. When the platter containing the favorite food was held before the parson he excited no surprise by dipping deep and long, until his capacious pewter plate was filled to the brim. When each had been supplied, silence was enjoined by a sharp rap on the table by Uncle Daniel Field, who immediately announced: "Parson Coffin will now exercise mercy." Rising slowly from his seat, the saintly servant of the Most High raised his spreading hands, closed his eyes, and said an extensive and comprehensive grace.

Taking advantage of the moment, Thomas Lewis quickly seized the great spoon and transferred the minister's pudding to his own plate, while the younger of the assembled guests, whose eyes had not been closed so completely as such occasion demanded, witnessed the amusing performance with expressions of face better imagined than described. Just as the last portion was disappearing from the plate of the honored guest, he had finished his invocation, and turning his eyes downward cried out; "Ho; ho; Brother Lewis, what are doing with my pudding" "I beg a thousand pardons, Parson Coffin," responded Thomas, "I thought I was dipping from the platter." This joke was well received by all. . . .
