John M. Lewis

Lewis Days.

By John M. Lewis, Portland, Oregon.

We are to have a Fair of our own the coming year, an event made possible by the courage, self sacrifice and lofty patriotism of the illustrious Meriwether Lewis. Nothing else would prompt an American to do what he did. Lewis Day here and elsewhere should be great days. I shall be glad to do what I can to make them so.

Lewis Day at St. Louis.

By Edward S. Lewis, St. Louis, Mo.

The Lewis Day reunion took place Sept. 23, 1904 in Camp Lewis, there being about 175 persons present. The meeting was opened at 10:00 A. M. at Camp Lewis on the arrival there of Gen. E. G. Lewis in command who was received with a salute of artillery. The meeting was called to order by the Chairman of the Executive Committee who, after a prayer by the Rev. B. F. Lewis of Miss., welcomed the Lewises, and then delivered an address upon Wales, the Welsh people and Lewis ancestors. He then introduced Hon. Frank P. Lewis who presided during the remainder of the meeting.

America was sung by the entire audience and addresses were delivered by Hon. F. P. Lewis of Wash., Ulysses Lewis of Ga., Howell Lewis of Va., Col. Warner Lewis of Mo., Walter C. Lewis of Canada, Geo. Harlan Lewis of N. Y., Alfred E. Lewis and Harry W. Lewis of Penn. and Hon. J. W. Lewis of Ky. A very interesting address on Meriwether Lewis was delivered by J. N. Baskett. Miss Mary Lewis of Ky. sang the Holy City and the audience the Star Spangled Banner when adjournment was taken until 6:30 P. M. when a banquet under the auspices of the Lewis Publishing Co. was given.

After the banquet a number of short speeches were made. A photograph of all present was taken by flash light in front of the Lewis Building after which the triennial of the Loyal Lewis Legion was held and ten candidates initiated. The above is a brief summary of the proceedings of Lewis Day.

Special and Extra Issues.

"If you would devote a whole issue to the records of my line (I am not particularly interested in the others) I would willingly contribute the expense of publishing the same." The Editor has been making special efforts to meet this demand and is happy to announce that sufficient records in several Books are now in sight for one or more issues.

These issues will be illustrated if their contributors desire and will send suitable photos for making the necessary cuts and will be issued for the actual cash outlay involved in the printing the regular edition and the number of copies desired by the contributors. The Publisher as remuneration for his work in the matter will demand that these issues be paged in the current volume of Lewisiana and that a copy be mailed to each subscriber of the paper. Thus many of our friends can have the satisfaction of a complete pamphlet devoted to their own line while Lewisiana columns will be relieved from the pressure now so heavy, of accumulated records. The first of these special issues will be a Lewis Day Souvenir, to be issued in about ten days. As the edition is limited orders for extra copies should be sent in at once.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, Etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used: as b for born; d died; m married; m (1) first wife; dau. daughter; un. not married; v. p. see page; etc.

Chapter XIV.

By Henry H. Lewis, Carthage, N. Y.
Cordelia M. (55 v p 165, Vol. XIV) m Nov. 10, 1852 Emory J. Pennock, b Feb. 28, 1832. Mr. and Mrs. Pennock, though having retired from farm life, still live upon the farm a short distance from Great Bend, N. Y. and while going down the western side of life, are still active in all good works and the hospitality one receives, upon entering their well kept and spacious home, at once endears them to the hearts of all. They are staunch prohibitionists, true and loyal to the convictions of their belief. They are prominent in all the workings of the church and are its most faithful and true followers. They did much in the building of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Great Bend. That they are loved and esteemed by all was clearly demonstrated on the eve of Nov. 10, 1902 when one hundred and thirty of their relatives and invited friends met at their home and surprised them it being the 50th anniversary of their marriage. After an hour of social greeting the company was called to order and listened to a well planned programme after which supper was served. The presents were many and beautiful. Of those present a few were present at the wedding Nov. 10, 1852: Mr. and Mrs.

Charles Cross (50), Wm. I. Lewis (54) and Mrs. Prudence Olley (58).

Chapter CCCXXXII.

By Marcus W. Lewis, Duluth, Minn.

Jonathan, (390 v p 103, Vol. XIV) b Sept. 25, 1766, became a sailor boy at an early age. He followed the sea from time to time and so well was he liked by his employers, that he rose by promotion to the rank of Captain. He made trips to many parts of the world and several times rounded the stormy Cape Horn. Many times he has been heard to say that "to swear like a sailor" was almost a common adage, and he resolved when a youth that he would neither swear nor get drunk and this resolution he strictly kept through all his long life of nearly eighty years.

He followed the sea for about forty years, and in the meantime (1787) was married to Hannah Hallett, and during his life on the ocean seven children were born to him at Barnstable, Mass—four boys and three girls.

He concluded that his boys should not follow the sea as he had done, so about the year 1800 he moved with his family to Albany Co., N. Y. where six more children were born. In 1816 he decided to move with his large family to the "Far West" as the Ohio valley was then known. Two of the older boys—Clement and Rodman—remained in New York state and never lived farther west. Jonathan took a pair of horses, a cow, a wagon and his household goods, traveled through Central New York and western Pennsylvania to Pittsburg. On this journey it is said that he lost one of his children from the wagon, and did not miss it until he had traveled nearly a day and that he then went back and found it.

At Pittsburg, with the help of his boys he built a flatboat on which his family were carried down the Ohio river to Cincinnati. While descending the Ohio he would land his flatboat at night and allow his horses and cow to graze. From Cincinnati he rode horseback some 30 miles to near what is now Kelso, Dearborn Co. Ind., where he purchased 160 acres of Government land, paying $1.25 per acre. He then returned to Cincinnati and with three of his boys—probably Welcome, Harvey and Richard,—and the horses, wagon, and some bedding again went to his farm cleared land and built a log cabin. He then brought the remainder of his family which he had left at Cincinnati.

Chapter CCXXXVI.

From Lewis and Clark Journal.

Those who are interested in the mystifying personality and death of Meriwether Lewis (64),—whose moods of bitter melancholy as private secretary to President Jefferson and later as Governor of Louisiana Territory, consorted so strangely with his inflexible earnestness of purpose and alert masterful leadership in the great expedition of 1804-1806 to the Pacific, will be glad to hear Olin D. Wheeler's view of this dark and puzzling problem. After adding some new contributions to all the data so industriously gathered by Dr. Coles and others, Mr. Wheeler comes to the conclusion that Captain Lewis's death was due to murder, not suicide, on the lonely "Natchez trace," while on the way to President Jefferson at Washington. In this respect Mr. Wheeler agrees with Dr. Coles, who has done much to remove the cloud under which Lewis's name has rested by the suicide theory. All the testimony on both sides is carefully canvassed and analyzed before this conclusion is reached.

"I cannot but believe," says Mr. Wheeler "that time and the name of Jefferson have given a fictitious weight to the theory of suicide, and that now, considering the uncertain nature of the evidence, the time has come to give Governor Lewis the full and unreserved benefit of the doubt, and relieve his name and fame of the imputation heretofore resting upon it."

JOHN LEWIS, Ireland to Virginia.
Chapter CIV.

From New Orleans Daily Picayune.

Dr. John Hampden Lewis (425 v last issue) was b in this city Sept. 14, 1810, the seventh of ten children. He received an education befitting the rank and intelligence of his ancestors and matriculated in Yale College, where he distinguished himself by his strong mental power and force of character. He was a leader in the famous Conic Section revolt, which prevented him from receiving a degree (Yale conferred the honorary degree of M. A. upon him in 1880, when he was seventy years of age). In 1830 he left college on account of the death of his mother and in obedience to the wishes of his father decided to study medicine.

Following the winter course at Cincinnati he returned to New Orleans to prosecute his studies in the Charity Hospital of which he was appointed assistant surgeon. In 1832 he went to Paris to complete his studies. After spending eighteen months abroad he returned to this city and graduated in the first class from the Louisiana Medical College. In the meantime however, he had been in charge of a private infirmary.

Clippings.

Wellington, O., Sept. 15.—A monument recently placed in the cemetery here has raised a storm of protest because of the inscription which is upon it. The monument was ordered by a nephew of the deceased lady, and it is said that he is responsible for the epitaph, which follows:

Mary M. Lewis,

Born November 30, 1830.

Died June 18, 1904.

I don't care what you say,
She would have her own way.
Now she's under the sod
She must submit to God.

It is claimed that the motive of the author was not to reflect upon the character of the departed, yet the ladies of this place take a different view of the matter, as shown in the following statement appearing in the local paper: "In justice to the one who cannot speak for herself, we, who have known her for many years, wish to testify to her sterling good qualities and kindness of heart. She submitted herself to God years before she was under the sod and led a consistent Christian life."
