Colonel Alfred Joshua Lewis, New Orleans, La.

Orator of Memorial Day. New Orleans, June 3, 1904.

By Courtesy of the New Orleans Daily Picayune.

Alfred Joshua Lewis, (431) the only child of Alfred Jefferson Lewis (428.XLV) and Mrs. Eliza Lewis (born Magioni and widow of Phillip Power) was born at New Orleans, La., July 27, 1841. He was left an orphan at an early age, his father having died Oct. 23, 1842, and his mother April 21, 1854. He was adopted by his maiden aunts, Miss Louisa Maria Lewis and Miss Eliza Cornelia Lewis, both of whom have left sainted memories by their devotion to the works of benevolence, especially as Directresses of the Poydras Female Orphan Asylum. He was educated in New Orleans, graduated with the degree of A. B. at the University of Louisiana, now

Tulane, then went to University of Virginia in 1860. At the opening of hostilities between the States, the students organized two companies, which were enrolled in the Albemarle Battalion of the Va. State Nat. Guards. As one of these the Southern Guards, he made the first campaign of the war as private at Harper's Ferry. In Sept. 1861 was commissioned 2nd Lieut. in the 1st La. Infantry Regulars, then stationed at Pensacola. He participated in all the battles of the West, was slightly wounded at Shiloh; after competitive examination was appointed ordnance officer of Artillery of Hood's corps, with the rank of 1st Lieut. of Cavalry—returning to the line was promoted captain of the 1st La. Regulars, took part in the siege at Nashville and wound up his career at the defense of Mobile, being stationed at Spanish Fort. He surrendered with Lieut. Gen. Richard Taylor and was honorably paroled. Returning to New Orleans he studied law during which time he was appointed a Notary Public, for the Parish of Orleans. In 1870 was elected a member of the lower House and 1872 a member of the Senate of the General Assembly, but each time was excluded from his seat by the Radicals. As a member of the La. Rifle Club he participated in the overthrow of the Kellogg Government on the memorable Sept. 14, 1874, and whilst thus serving as a private soldier without knowledge on his part, was appointed Colonel of Infantry. He has been prominent in private as well as public life and has held distinguished positions in the Seven Wise Men, Knights of Pythias, Knights of Honor, Legion of Honor, Army of Tenn. La. Div., Soldiers' Home of La. and the United Confederate Veterans. As a lawyer he stands high and has the respect and confidence of the Public.

Another Lewis College President.

From Waynesturg, Pa., Independent.

Dr. A. F. Lewis, the new President of Waynesburg College, has had a varied experience educationally, the greater part of the forty-two years of his life having been spent as a student or teacher. He was born and brought up near Bowling Green Ky., his ancestors being among the pioneers in the settlement of that portion of the state. They were also identified with the pioneer history of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, his paternal grandfather being one of the early ministers of that denomination. Dr. Lewis received his first college education at Ogden College, in Bowling Green, where he took the Bachelors and Masters degree. He subsequently took the same degrees at Princeton University, N. J., and later that of Doctor of Philosophy at John Hopkins University at Baltimore. Beside this he has spent one winter in study abroad at the University of Berlin, his aim being to prepare himself fully for the profession of teaching.

He has taught two years in Kentucky, seven in Florida and something over four years in Arkansas. He was President of West Florida State College at Tallahassee, the patronage and influence of which he succeeded in largely increasing during that time. His career there was warmly endorsed by the College Board of Education, as that of a growing and progressive educator. The last position held by him prior to his coming to Waynesburg was the chair of History and Political Science in the University of Arkansas, where he gained the confidence of the students and of his colleagues in the faculty and his work was highly commended by the president of the University. He has been pronounced to be one who has been successful in all the positions he has filled.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, Etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page; etc.

Chapter CCCXCVI.

From N. Y. Gen. and Biog. Record.
 Humphreville, with collateral lines.
 Harriet Southworth (Lewis) Barnes.
 Philadelphia. 1903. 12 D, pamphlet,
 pp. 56.

The ancestral record of Frances Amelia (Smith) Lewis is here set forth, containing the families of Beecher,
 Bristol, Brown, Bullard, Clark,
 Dwight, Farrington, Peck, Preston,
 Sperry and Stiles as well as Humphreville. The compiler gives the birth and marriage of all children of each direct ancestor, but only traces the lineal descent of Mrs. Lewis. There are pleasant records here of the peace
 and plenty of the good old times, when the well-to-do farmer filled his cellar with "quantities of salted and smoked meats, barrels of apple butter, mince-meat, cider and vinegar," as well as "the corner set off for the wagonloads of oysters which, with plenty of seaweed to keep them alive" were carried from New Haven to Litchfield for the winter's use.

Southworth, with collateral lines.

Harriet Southworth (Lewis) Barnes. Philadelphia. 1903. Sq. D, pamphlet, pp. 50.

As in the Humphreville genealogy by the same author, the lineal descent only is traced, in this case being the ancestry of Henry Martyn Lewis (294 v p 71 Vol. VII) with the allied families of Buckingham, Collier, Kirtland, Pratt and Shipman. The story of the romance of Governor Bradford is told in pleasant narrative form.

FRANCIS LEWIS, Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Chapter LXVI.

By James H. Lewis, New York City.

Letter of Samuel J. Lewis concluded from last issue.

"The father (name?) of the Lewis family was distinguished for his bravery, independent political principles and steadfast devotion to the Cause of American Independence and was an intimate friend and companion of James Clinton and all the celebrated Clinton family who were much attached to him. He was independent and wealthy for the times. One of his sons was captured at the battle of Fort Montgomery or Stony Point, near West Point, by the British. Gen. Clinton and gr. father Lewis escaped together; but Capt. Lewis, the son, refused to abandon the Fort and remained and loaded and fired the last gun, and mowed down a winrow through the British column. A British grenadier was about bayonetting the brave Lewis when his weapon was struck up by an officer who declared he was too brave a man to be killed and took him a prisoner. He was taken to New York city and confined in the old Brown Stone Sugar house in Rose st. on the corner of Duane st. just east of Chatham st. and kept there until he died; and was buried with several hundred other prisoners in the northeast corner Trinity Churchyard over whose graves a splendid monument was reared (directly opposite Pine st.) during the rectorship of the Rev. William Berrian. . . .

P. S. General Morgan Lewis (3) d at his mansion in Leonard st. in 1841 or 42 and was buried in northwest corner of Trinity Churchyard in the tomb of his father Francis Lewis (1.) A large slab inscribed with his name thereon is still there.

JOHN LEWIS, Ireland to Virginia.
Chapter CVI.

From Fortier's Hist. of La.

The U. S. attorney, John Dick, applied to Joshua Lewis (30 v p 188 Vol.

XIII), one of the district judges of the State, for a writ in favor of Hall.

Lewis, who was an officer in the company of the Orleans Rifles, and had been praised by Jackson for his gallantry, "without hesitation, on the first call of Dick, laid down his rifle and allowed the writ". Thereupon the commander-in-chief ordered both Dick and Lewis to be arrested. Colonel Arbuckle refused to deliver his prisoner, and Jackson countermanded the orders for the arrest of Dick and Lewis.

On the fourth of July, 1816, a splendid dinner was given at Jackson Hall, at which Judge Joshua Lewis (30 v p 49 Vol. XV) presided.

Chapter CVII.

By Alfred J. Lewis, New Orleans, La.

Judge Joshua (30) and America (Lawson) Lewis had 12 ch. b 6 in Ky. and 6 in La. All of these grew to maturity except the 6th and 12th which d in infancy, the last being named Columbus in honor of his uncle Columbus Lawson, probably the first on the American side who was killed at the battle of New Orleans, Jan'y 8, 1815.

Of those who grew to maturity (v p 32 Vol. XV) the son whose name was omitted was Alfred Jefferson (428) the 7th ch. b New Orleans, La., Sept. 29, 1808, and was the first native Louisianian. He was educated at the school of Parson Hull, then noted in New Orleans, and other institutions and was graduated with high honors at Washington College, Hartford, Ct. He possessed a splendid physique and remarkable strength, was tall, handsome and of commanding appearance, of amiable temper and courteous demeanor, which endeared him to all, whilst his learning and talents challenged their admiration.

Among his intimate friends were such eminent men, as Prof. Alexander Dimity and Jefferson Davis, President of the Southern Confederacy. All of them ever spoke of him in terms of affectionate remembrance and exalted praise. Whilst serving as one of the civil functionaries of New Orleans, he was seized with a malignant fever, which he neglected in his devotion to the discharge of his public duties.

In consequence thereof, he d New Orleans, La., Oct. 23, 1842, in his 34th year leaving a widow Mrs. Eliza Lewis and 1 ch.

Chapter XLVIII.

From Unity for Dec. 4, 1902.

Enoch Lewis's (146 v last issue) ancestry reached back to that Welsh colony of Quakers that helped to found the city of Philadelphia, and to shape the State of Pennsylvania. He represented the finest issues of the Society of Friends, a man who brought the revelations of the inner light down to date, whose thought kept growing with the growing thought of his age and whose religion naturally expressed itself in terms of ethics. He found his normal place along side of Dr. Furness of blessed memory and was, through a long lifetime, a pillar, an officer and a servant in the First Unitarian Church of that city; and this he was without relinquishing his place in the fellowship of his fathers. He was a Quaker who had an eye for the beautiful; who loved all the arts, a friend of books, and a companion of the poets. It is a matter of still further interest to know that he came to this culture, this refinement, this interest in ideas and joy in intangible verities over what is supposed to be the inhospitable road of business and practical affairs.

WILLIAM LEWIS, Conn. to Vt.

Chapter XVI.

From Williamstown, Ky., Courier.

In early life Dr. Charles D. Lewis (14 v p 24 Vol. XV) was a member o

the Congregationalist Church, but on locating in Ky. he united with the Presbyterians and died in the membership and communion of that church. When Dr. Lewis began the practice of medicine in Grant county educated and well equipped physicians were few and far between and he at once acquired a large and lucrative practice. He traveled a territory more than twenty miles square and the amount of labor performed by him was almost incredible. The weather was never too inclement or circumstances too forbidding to prevent his attending his patients. He never neglected a call. The relief of suffering humanity was the paramount passion of his life. His patients well nigh believed him endowed with super-human skill and he rewarded their confidence with the most undeviating devotion to their interest. No man ever possessed purer morals or cherished more sacredly the delicate duties and responsibilities of his high and honorable calling. His life was a uniform, conscientious consecration to the interest of afflicted and destitute humanity, and he enjoyed the honors and some of the emoluments of the profession.

Had he made money seeking and money saving the aim and object of his life he would undoubtedly have accumulated a large fortune and gone down to his grave with the reputation of being a successful business man; but he lived for more than fame or wealth—he lived for those who knew him, true for the heaven that smiled above him and the good that he could do. His characteristics were simple and striking. He was kind, courteous and agreeable in manner, temperate in all things; no rash judgments or harsh conclusions were formed. He was reasonable and fair in all matters and with all men. He was himself well educated and practiced the habits and methods of an educated man. He was a devout and consistent member of the church and discharged all his religious duties with the same systematic devotion to the cause of Christ that characterized his whole life work. His temper was as gentle as the morning and his domestic virtues were the virtues of the Christian philosopher. In politics he was a Republican and while firm in his convictions he was unobtrusive and tolerant of the views and opinions of those who differed from him and prudent and careful of the feelings of all.

His was an evenly rounded life, well and profitably spent. A model husband, a loving father, a typical citizen. He has gone down to his grave full of years and full of honors. But his memory and example remain; the sublime faith that sustained through life did not forsake him in death and he fell asleep in Jesus, confident that he would awaken upon the shores of a brighter and better land.
