NOTE:

Julia writes (probably 1936 or 1937): " When grandma cooked for the Indians, we lived in Nebraska, near Sioux City, Iowa. I was born in 1868. In 1874 about August, the grasshoppers came in a big black cloud at noontime the lights were lit and chickens went to roost. The grasshoppers ate everything in sight. I think about 24 hours as I remember then left like a cloud as they came. The farmers gathered their roasting ears in tubs and boxes to save them. The Indians came through and compelled grandma to cook a lot of washboilers full of corn which they took away in sacks. I was very much afraid of the Indians and hid under the bed. This amused them and they made me come out."
