A few of the historical events that relate to genealogical research and family history in Maryland:

In 1632 a charter was granted to Cecilius Calvert, the second Lord Baltimore. Maryland remained a proprietary colony until 1776, except for the period from 1691 to 1715 when the colony was under the jurisdiction of the British crown. In 1634 the ships Ark and Dove brought about 200 Catholic and Protestant English settlers to the Western Shore of the Chesapeake Bay, where Saint Mary's was established. The original colonists were persecuted Catholics and Protestants from England. The Act Concerning Religion outlawed intolerance to anyone professing a faith in Christ. A large number of Puritans were attracted by this religious freedom and settled in Anne Arundel.

Beginning in 1640, marriage banns were required and marriage licenses have been required since 1777. These are kept by the state archives and the clerk of the circuit court in each county.

A site named "Coles Harbor" was granted to Thomas Cole in 1668. In 1729 the city of Baltimore was founded there. It soon became a major port and commercial center.

Maryland gave up sixty square miles to create the District of Columbia in 1791.

The War of 1812 [1812-1815] involved many Maryland residents, and some battles were fought in Maryland.

In 1851 Baltimore City became an independent city and began keeping court, land, and probate records separately from the county.

Maryland soldiers fought on both sides during the Civil War (1861-1865).

Slaves in Maryland were emancipated in 1864.

Maryland began keeping a civil register of births and deaths in 1898 (Baltimore began in 1875)

Letter from the Editor

This is the third volume of 2006, dealing primarily with the Maryland Census. I have included a few articles about Maryland Franklins, too.

One of the interesting things I noticed while doing this was that there seems to be a larger number of free African-Americans in the censuses prior to the Emancipation by the name of Franklin in Maryland than in other states that I have abstracted. This seems to be primarily due to the large population of free blacks, particularly in the Baltimore area.

Maryland also has a large population of Franklins in general. As you will see from the article about Thomas Franklin, the Franklins came here early and were prolific. Perhaps some of these early Franklins freed their slaves. If anyone knows that particulars about this, drop me a line.

I again visited the Family History Library in Salt Lake City in August and have gathered a significant number of the articles mentioned for Franklins in the PERSI index. In addition, I gathered copies of the documents pertaining to Franklins in early Virginia as indexed in Earl Gregg Swem's famous work, Virginia Historical Index.

This includes the references found in the following publications and volumes: The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, volumes 1–38 (1893–1930); The William and Mary College Quarterly Magazine, first series, volumes 1–27 (1892–1919), and second series, volumes 1–10 (1921–1930); Tyler's Quarterly Historical and Genealogical Magazine, volumes 1–10 (1919–1929); Virginia Historical Register and Literary Advertiser, volumes 1–6 (1848–1853); The Lower Norfolk County Virginia Antiquary, volumes 1–5 (1895–1906); Hening's Statutes at Large, volumes 1–13 (1619–1792); and the Calendar of Virginia State Papers, volumes 1–11 (1652–1869).

This is part of my on-going work of collecting Franklin materials from Colonial Virginia, which, I assume will take a number of years to complete. In the meantime, I will continue to publish materials from this collection.

I have scanned and OCR'd all of the above-mentioned articles and they are "at my finger-tips" via Google's Desktop Search Engine. I am continuing to scan and OCR the Franklin mentions in NEGHS, which comprises about 1,300 pages of semi-legible material. Many thousands of pages of this material is still protected by copyright, so I cannot publish them verbatim, or make them directly available via the web, but if you send me a query, I would be happy to run it against the information that I have.

In order to publish this information and the other information that I have collected, I am currently estimating that it will take approximately 42 years @ 200 pages/year to share with you, via FFRU newsletters, all of the information that I already have, so I think I'm going to have to re-think this 200 pages/year limitation. It certainly isn't keeping up with my data acquisition rate...

Book Review: Franklin and related lines

Author: Raymoure, Dorothy, 1919- (Main Author)

Notes: Reproduced from typescript. Includes index.

James Franklin (born 1650), a soldier in King Phillip's War, was living in Braintree, (Norfolk County) Massachusetts, in 1676. He was living in Rhode Island in 1693, moved to Dartmouth, Massachusetts, and was living in Swansea, Massachusetts, in 1716. He and his first wife had four children. He married 2) Elizabeth Hammond in 1695. Descendants lived in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, and elsewhere.

Includes the Cooper, Raymoure-Raymore, Towers, and other related families.

Call Number - Location: 929.273 A1 no. 588 - JSMB US/CAN Book

Format: Books/Monographs (With Film)

Publication: Grand Rapids: D. Raymoure, 1959

Physical: 31 [i.e. 33], 7 leaves

Subject Class: 929.273 A1

Earliest Franklin Progenitor: As listed in the Notes, above.

My Impressions: This manuscript is typescript and consists of about 44 pages, numbered in a variety of ways. The front matter consists of a page of queries, addressed to the reader, and a rudimentary pedigree chart. It does not use any of the standard genealogical numbering formats, and is written in a mostly narrative style. It contains a few references to source material, and only a few source citations. It has been abstracted in Franklin Fireplace, page 175-178 and FFRU, Volume 4.

Thomas Franklin of Anne Arundel County, Maryland

From A Twentieth century history of southwest Texas City of Publication: Chicago; Lewis Publishing Company; Copyright 1907, Volume 2, pages 25-27

Thomas Franklin, whose death occurred December 22, 1906, was noted civil engineer in San Antonio. He represented a prominent family of Maryland, of English ancestry. The Franklin family was founded in America in 1642 by Thomas Franklin, who received a grant of land in what is now called Anne Arundel county, Maryland, the deed, which is still in possession of the family, having been executed by Leonard Calvert, the representative of Lord Baltimore, proprietor of Maryland. The estate was situated eighteen miles from the city of Annapolis and remained the home of the family through seven generations, the eldest son in the direct line in each generation bearing the name of Thomas. The Franklins were closely associated with the early history and development of Annapolis, and the paternal grandfather of our subject was president of a bank in Annapolis for fifty years. George Edward, the father, was a sea captain from early youth and in early life commanded a clipper ship on the Atlantic. His wife bore the maiden name of Maria Johnson, who came of a family prominent in Baltimore, her father having served for twenty years as mayor of that city receiving no remuneration for his services. He occupied the position of chief executive of the city at the time when General Lafayette paid a visit to this country. The maternal great-grandfather of our subject was a surgeon in the British navy. Mr. Franklin's sister, Anna Franklin, is the wife of Admiral Schley, who won fame during the Spanish-American war.

The late Thomas Franklin was born on the old Franklin homestead in Anne Arundel county, near Annapolis, Maryland, November 15, 1842. He acquired his education at St. John's College and the Maryland Agricultural and Mechanical College, at Annapolis, being graduated from the latter institution, in the department of civil engineering. His services in this connection have extended over a wide area in the United States, Mexico and South America. During the Civil war he went to Brazil and was engaged in civil engineering in that country. In early life he supplemented his college course by study under Benjamin H. Latrobe, from whom he gained practical and valuable information. Mr. Latrobe having in charge the construction of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad through the Allegany mountains. Mr. Franklin was located in the city of Washington for some years, where he was engaged in engineering work, acting as city engineer for three years under Mr. Shepard. In 1875 he made a topographical survey of the capitol grounds but his principal work in that city was in designing and originating the construction of what is known as the long bridge across the Potomac, which is still standing.

134. In 1870, same county, page 778, listed as head of household.

135. In 1850, same county, page 299, more notes shown for 1850 entry. In 1870, same county, page 711.

This work was done for the Pennsylvania Company, with which he was connected for seven years, the company being noted for employing only the highest class of engineering talent, which is proof of Mr. Franklin's expert workmanship. During his service with that company he built three hundred bridges on their various lines and he also did other work as well. For a time he was located in Chicago, where he made the surveys and began the construction work for the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad, extending from that city to Danville. In 1880 Mr. Franklin went to Mexico, where he was employed by the Mexican National Railroad Company which was projected by the Palmer-Sullivan syndicate to extend southward from Nueva Laredo to the city of Mexico. Subsequently he was appointed engineer in charge of the construction of this line for the northern division, being thus engaged for about two years. In March, 1882, he took up his abode in Texas, establishing his home in San Antonio, and was then employed in the construction of the Southern Pacific Railroad, taking the contract for this work. He engaged in engineering work of various kinds, building sewers, water works, cement sidewalks, race tracks, etc., and was considered an authority on topographical engineering. He constantly studied the needs and possibilities in his particular line of work and gained more than local reputation as a civil engineer, possessing excellent business ability and sound judgment and an expert workmanship that gained for him many important contracts.

Mr. Franklin was married to Miss Mary Bowie, representing a Maryland family, whose representatives have become distinguished both Maryland and in national history. Her birth occurred in Prince George county, a daughter of Colonel W. W. Bowie, who was lieutenant governor and the owner of a large estate that was noted among other things for its fine imported stock. Colonel Bowie was the cousin of Odon Bowie, who was governor of Maryland from 1868 until 1872, and in fact seven members of the family have acted as governor of that state. The mother bore the maiden name of Snowden, and came of an English family, she being a niece of the Earl of Fairfax. Hon. Reverdy Johnson, a lawyer of international reputation, who became a noted diplomat, succeeding Charles Francis Adams as ambassador to England in 1866, was through marriage related to the Bowie family, while Mrs. Franklin is a niece of Dr. Grafton Tyler, a surgeon of prominence and one of the old-time noted characters of Washington. Mrs. Franklin accompanied her husband as a bride to the city of Washington, and during his work in connection with civil engineering has been compelled to establish a home in many frontier regions, particularly in Mexico where she was the only American woman.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin, eight in number, are: Captain Thomas, Walter, Amy, Mrs. May Bartlett, George E., Claud, Ruth Howard and Todd Lowrie; also an adopted daughter Adelina Maurice, child of his wife's niece.

The eldest son, Captain Thomas Franklin, has made a notable record as a soldier. After completing his education he assisted his father in his work of engineering, after which he joined the regular United States army as a private. He was promoted to sergeant. During the Spanish-American war he went to Manila with the Twenty-second Infantry, where, by his courage and bravery he won the high esteem of General Lawton, and thereby promotion to the position of second lieutenant and subsequently to first lieutenant, becoming a member of the staff of General McArthur. From the Philippines he was transferred to service in the Boxer rebellion in China, where he not only won his title as captain but attracted the notice of the officers of the other armies then stationed in China. He is now stationed at West Point Military Academy, having the rank of major and is second in command in that noted institution, it being a somewhat remarkable fact that a non-graduate of West Point should have this honor conferred upon him.
