

GEORGE LITTLE,

the founder of the Newbury family of this name, came, according to a long and reliable tradition, from Unicorn Street, near London Bridge, England.

He settled in Newbury, Massachusetts in 1640, or soon after.

Three hundred and fifty-nine years and fourteen generations later, the farm he established is still operated by his descendants.

Purpose of the GLFA:

1. To promote and foster an interest in the heritage of the descendants of George Little of Newbury, Massachusetts, who arrived in Newbury from London, England in 1640.
2. To promote and foster an interest in familial, genealogical, historical and educational matters related to George Little and his descendants.
3. To promote and foster within the membership a sense of kinship as inheritors of the American culture and society to which George Little and his descendants contributed in its formative times.
