The workshop is not only for those of you already well into genealogy, rather it is intended to appeal to everyone with an interest in their Little family history. There is a lot of information available about the Newbury area including many pointers to sources - libraries, town halls, county records, cemeteries, and so on, and, of course, specific knowledgeable individuals. Some of these materials will be copied and made available.

Activities will range from introductory to serious but not professional. The main objective is to link up people who share similar interests. Family lines will center on the Little family and closely connected families. Geographical areas will be centered on Newbury and nearby towns.

There will be computer demonstrations of two principal varieties. One variety, genealogical software, shows the usefulness of computers in organizing and presenting genealogical
