

Saturday, August 12th Activities

information. The other, the Internet, shows the usefulness of computers in making use of on-line resources and contacts.

Pre-Reunion Effort to Connect People - Come Prepared

To get some mutually useful information organized ahead of time, Norman Adams would like to compile very brief descriptions of:

- 1) What are your particular genealogical interests?
- 2) What relevant information and materials can you make available to help other people?

Ideally, each person would get a copy of this information before the reunion so that you will be able to see with whom you want to talk most urgently.

The more people involved, the more likely we will be able to eventually attempt to extend the 1882 book forward to our generations. If successful, this workshop will launch genealogical cooperation continuing after Reunion 2000.

The workshop is being coordinated and conducted by Norman Adams.

Please contact him with your interests and contributions: email nadams@capecod.net, phone 508-255-3482

Saturday, August 12th Guided Cemetery Tour Oak Hill Cemetery, Newburyport 10 am

A tour combining history and humor will be led by Todd Woodworth at the Oak Hill Cemetery in Newburyport. Information about other cemeteries will be available at registration including the layout and location of over one hundred Littles laid to rest in the cemetery across from the First Parish Church on High Street, Newbury.

Saturday, August 12th House & Garden Tours 11 am until 3 pm

Available homes and grounds for visiting include Atkinson-Little House, Cushing House and Gardens, Coffin House, Newbury Perennial Gardens and Nursery, Dole-Little House, Spencer-Peirce-Little Farm.

Atkinson-Little House on the Newbury Upper Green

Home to generations of Littles starting in the 1800s, the land in this estate was owned about 1650 by Robert Morse who sold the house and orchard in 1658 to Amos Stickney. Soon afterward the property was apparently acquired by John Atkinson, passing from him in 1702 to his son,