

The Crouch Family 1898 Houston, Texas

#1. Sallie Winters Crouch (1828-1913)

#2. Jackson Crouch (1805-1900)

#3. Orin Crouch

#4. Rhoda Spears

#5. John Crouch

#6. Charles Crouch

#7. William Crouch

#8. Lidia Moore (1904-1975)

This is a truly memorable picture. In the old Moulton cemetery a state marker tells that there rests Jackson Crouch, a soldier of the Texas Revolution, who died Sept. 8, 1900 in his 95th year. Here is his picture with his wife and family and with memories that go back to Sam Houston while still in Tenn. The daughter in white standing to the right is, Mrs. Sam B. (Lydia) Moore was also the grandmother of our Allan Brothers. Her husband was one of the outstanding Moulton pioneers.

Sitting are, Sallie Winters Crouch and Jackson Crouch.

Standing, are their children Orin Crouch, Rhoda Spears, John Charles and William Crouch, Lydia Moore (Wife of Sam B. Moore, one of the outstanding Moulton pioneer settlers.

A son, J. Wiley Crouch, was a Confederate soldier killed in battle on June 21, 1861. Sallie (Sarah) Crouch died June 8, 1913 also in her 95 year just as her husband. Both rest in the old Moulton Cemetery.

In Live Oak County rests their mother of Mrs. Crouch, wife of James Winters. Three of their sons were in the Battle of San Jacinto, one of them being badly wounded. Their father was close friend of Sam Houston while still in Tennessee and also here.

In "Texas Indian Fighters" by A. J. Sowell is also a story of Capt. James J. Winters, one of those three sons who fought at San Jacinto. Since this was a brother of Mrs. Jackson Crouch and thus a great great-uncle of our Alien Brothers, it's also of special interest. Here is the story.

Captain James W. Winters
San Jacinto Veteran

Once in a great while and badly scattered, the writer, while, in pursuit of Texas history, comes upon a San Jacinto veteran. One of these, Capt. James W. Winters, lives near the Big Foot postoffice in Frio County.

Mr. Winters was born in Giles County, Tenn. on the 21st of January, 1817, near the town of Pelasca. His father, James Winters, was born in North Carolina and came to Tenn. at an early age. He was married to Miss Rhoda Beat, daughter of Benjamine Beal, during the war with, the Creek Indians.. The marriage took place in a fort while the people were gathered there to make a defense against the Indians.

Before the war was over he joined General Jacksons army and took part in the battle of Talladega. While with the army, Mr. Winters made the. acquaintance of Sam Houston, and afterwards met him in Texas, and they recognized each other.

Donated by: Luella Mangum