I am seeking all genealogical and biographical details for the family documented below including their ancestors, children, and grandchildren and the spouses thereof, including the full names of those spouses' parents. All additions and corrections within this scope, however speculative, will be greatly appreciated.

Frederick Lubbertsen of New Amsterdam

I am indebted to Dr. Edward Rockstein for generously sharing his research on Frederick Lubbertsen. Technically speaking, Frederick's patronymic should be rendered as Lubbertszen but Lubbetsen was the form used by Frederick himself.

1. FREDERICK<sup>1</sup> LUBBERTSEN was born in Amsterdam, Holland, Netherlands 1606 and died in Brooklyn, Kings County, New York 22 November 1679; he was first married in the Netherlands to STYNTJE JANS. Styntje was born in the Netherlands circa 1607 and died in New Amsterdam in 1657. Frederick married second in New Amsterdam, Kings County, New York on 17 August 1657 TRYNTJE HENDRICKSE, widow of Cors Pietersen Vroom and daughter of Hendrick Tomassen and Elsie Martense. On 25 December 1662 Frederick and Tryntje were living in Brooklyn; they were listed there as members of the Reformed Dutch Church.

Obviously, Frederick was the son of a man named Lubbert. In the Ancestral File of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, some researchers have stated that Frederick was the son of Lubbert Albertsz and Aeltje Jansd of Amsterdam, North Holland. Any evidence to support or refute that possibility would be greatly appreciated.

In the records of the New Amsterdam Reformed Dutch Church, we find several baptisms that were witnessed by Frederick and or one of his wives.

On 8 December 1641, a Styntie Jans witnessed the baptism of Rammetje, daughter of Hans Janszen van Noorstrant.

On 21 May 1646, Fredrick Lubbertszen witnessed the baptism of Nicolaes, son of Barent Janszen.

On 25 June 1646, a Styntje Fredricks witnessed the baptism of Paulyntie, daughter of Jan Stephenszen the schoolmaster.

On 26 February 1651, Frederick Lubbertszen & wife witnessed the baptism of his granddaughter Christina, daughter of Jacob Leendertszen [Van der Grift and Rebecca Fredericks].

On 16 January 1656, Frederick Lubbertszen witnessed the baptism of Jacobus, son of Jan Peeck and Maria de Terwick.

On 8 May 1658, Fredrick Lubbertszen and Tryntje Hendricks witnessed the baptism of Wyntie, daughter of Pieter Stoutenburg and Aefje Van Tienhoven.

On 3 December 1662 Frederick Lubbertsen and Annetien Jans witnessed the baptism of Sara, daughter of another one of my direct ancestors, Jan<sup>1</sup> Pieterszen van Huysum and his wife, Grietje Jans.

"Feric Lubbertsen" is as he signed his name. He emigrated to this country at an early period, residing at first in New Amsterdam as early as 1639, where in 1641, he was one of the "12 men to whom the trouble with the Indians was referred," (Source?) 23 May 1640 he obtained a patent for a large tract covering most of South Brooklyn. 4 September 1645, he obtained a patent for another plantation in Brooklyn, to which he removed; and was magistrate from 1653 to 1655 and again in 1673.

Lubbertsen was a slave owner. There was a bill of sale of a "Negro from Frederick Lubbertsen to Richard Lordt. The Negro's name was Antony and Lubbertsen transferred true ownership to employ the said Negro during his life time in all such work as the said Richard Lordt shall think proper." Dated November 28, 1647. (Virginia ?, correspondence [1999]).

Recall that Frederick Lubbertsen was one of the early owners of land in the area of Brooklyn on Long Island. He received a grant to lands in Brooklyn in 1640 and another in 1645. It has been speculated that he didn't move to Long Island until after receiving the grant in 1645. There are records showing him as a magistrate in the area of what is now Brooklyn in 1653 to 1655 and in 1673. I've seen it reported that Frederick Lubbertsen lived from 1606 to 1679 and was possibly the son of Lubbert Albertsz and Aeltje Jansd. It is believed that Frederick Lubbertsen came to America from Amsterdam with his wife Styntje Jans (b. abt 1607, d. 1657). In 1657, after the death of Styntje, Frederick married Tryntje Hendrickse, daughter of Hendrick Thomassen and Elsie Martense and the widow of Cors (Cornelius) Pietersen Vroom. In 1662 Frederick and his wife Tryntje were living on Long Island. (Dr. Edward D. Rockstein, correspondence, 22 September 2002)

Frederick wrote his will on 22 November 22, 1679; it was proved on 10 July 1693:

Will of Frederick Lubberse and Tryntie Hendrickse, his wife. Daughter, Elsie married Jacob Hansen. Testators also bequeathed to her a farm and one third interest in residuary estate. To Rebecca the sum of six hundred guilders wampum. To daughter Aeltie a farm. To son Peter and Hendrick Corson a farm. Also one-third in the said farm to then brother Cornelius Corson. Testatrix bequeaths all gold and silver belonging to her body to her two daughters, share and share alike. Residuary estate divided among the children.

The executors were not named but the will was witnessed by William Bogardus. It was recorded in Liber 1 of conveyances on page 315.
